NAZIS SEIZE PRIZE HARBOR OF SUDA BAY

Eden States War Aims During Losing Battle For Crete; British Pursued.

BRIDGEHEAD GAINED

Italians Report Landing on Eastern End of Vital Mediterranean Isle.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(AP)—German troops occupied Candia, Crete, today, DNB, official German news agency, announced. The town's airport and harbor were taken over by the advancing Germans, the news agency said, adding that several hundred Allied soldiers were captured.

(By Associated Press)

Italian troops were reported today to have entered the 10-day-old battle of Crete, landing on the eastern end of the island, while German forces captured the prize harbor of Suda bay on the west. Thus the British, already in dire straits, were caught in a vise.

Amid the losing struggle in Crete, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden gave the first comprehensive statement on Britain's war aims and declared:

"We must never forget that Germany is the worst master Europe has known. Five times in the last century she has violated the peace. She must never be in a position to play that role again."

Seizure of Suda bay gave the Germans a bridgehead for landing sea-borne troops, and military experts said it may prove to be the turning-point of the struggle—the beginning of another British debacle.

Hitler's high command reported that Nazi mountain troops, striking on beyond Suda bay, reached Almyro bay to the east in pursuit of the "defeated" British.

The German communique said Nazi forces had taken a large number of prisoners.

Fascist press dispatches reported also that hundreds of little Greek sailboats, loaded, with German troops, had been safely escorted to Crete under the guns of Italian warships.

Italian troops belatedly entered the conflict yesterday, it was reported.

"The landing was made in perfect order at the extreme eastern tip of the island with companies of soldiers and sailors," Fascist informants said.

"Its effect is to create for the commander of the British imperial forces a sudden new front to the east, when German pressure they

Mayor Has His Way Again, Places Test Fountain at Park

Mayor William J. Locke had his way again today as workers in the waterworks department installed a new $25 porcelain drinking fountain at the tennis courts at Maple park over the protests of Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton and the expressed wish of city council.

Council members and Crafton wanted the fountain installed at Park avenue west and Walnut street so that it would be given a maximum of use in a preliminary test. Before Crafton's arrival in the Municipal building this morning, however, the fountain had been taken, under orders by the mayor, to Maple Lake park, least attended of all parks in the city.

FDR MUM ON DELIVERY PLAN

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt adopted the strategy of silence today on future methods for delivering the goods to Great Britain.

"You don't telegraph your moves anymore in the world of today," one service official explained, referring to the president's statement that army and navy technicians were devising new safeguards.

However, Chairman Reynolds (D-N. C.) of the senate military committee looked for "full convoys of some description." He said that was his interpretation of the president's fireside chat pledge to see that needed supplies reached England safely.

On the other hand, no less a personage than Vice President Wallace was reported to be disappointed that his chief had not been more specific as to how delivery would be assured.

Mr. Roosevelt did nothing to quell conjecture yesterday at a special press conference. He disclaimed any intention of seeking change or repeal of the neutrality act, contending that it in no way infringed on the principle of the freedom of the seas, which he

HOPE DROPPED

Only Three Survivors, Out of 1,300 on Hood, Show Up.

LONDON—(INS)—Hopes that a considerable number of men might have survived the explosion that sank the British battle cruiser Hood under the guns of the German battleship Bismarck appeared groundless today.

Information reaching London showed that only three survivors from the Hood have turned up so far—one officer and two sailors, out of a total complement of more than 1,300.

An equally heavy loss of German life was reported when the Bismarck was sunk by avenging British naval units.

DIES OF FRACTURE

ZANESVILLE —(INS)— George Smothers, 21, died of a skull fracture to become the second victim of an auto-truck crash in U. S. Route 40. Harry Glover, 18, was killed outright. Both victims were from Newark.

Ringing of the old fire bell in Central park by Fire Chief Seeburger at 2 p. m. will start a parade from the downtown area to the cemetery where Atty. Charles R. Barefoot of Toledo will be the principal speaker at Memorial ceremonies.

The American Legion drum and bugle corps and three Mansfield high school bands will march in the parade with members of veterans' and patriotic organizations, Boy and Girl Scouts, and city officials.

Cloudy and cool weather was forecast for Friday by the weatherman who said thundershowers tonight will bring the drop in temperature.

City parks and recreation centers are preparing for a big day tomorrow as thousands of persons go outdoors for the first holiday week-end of the spring and summer season. Swimming pools will open at Liberty and Casino parks.

Public offices, stores, and schools in the city will be closed tomorrow. County and state offices will remain closed over Sat-

Reveal Requested Funds Will Give U. S. 56,000 Warplanes

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A combined army-navy airforce of 56,000 warplanes, informed legislators disclosed today, will be provided by the funds which President Roosevelt has asked of congress. The full strength is expected to be reached by the fall of 1943.

Members of the house military appropriations subcommittee said Robert B. Patterson, undersecretary of war, had told them that with funds in the $9,452,800,000 war department supply bill which the subcommittee approved late yesterday, the army air corps would be able to acquire a total of 46,000 planes.

The huge appropriation—largest single bill since World war days—was increased to the last minute to include the $2,790,890,785 requested Tuesday by President Roosevelt to give the army 13,000 additional planes.

The chief executive also asked $539,046,600 for the navy which committee members said would complete the fleet's 10,000-plane program.

Plans already have been announced by the office of production management for stepping up the output of heavy bombers to 500 a month in efforts to meet the need of both Britain and this country for such long-range aerial striking power. There even were indications that this rate would be accelerated further.

PRICE GOES UP

Legislation Okayed Prohibiting Cut-Rate Cigaret Prices.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Legislation prohibiting cut rate cigaret selling goes into effect three months hence with the result that Ohioans as a whole will pay about $4,000,000 a year more for their smokes.

Gov. John W. Bricker yesterday signed a bill requiring retailers to take a profit of at least 6 per cent above cost of the cigarets and expense for handling.

SITES CHOSEN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Toledo, and 11 other cities have been selected by the United States navy as sites for 23 new schools to train enlisted men as petty officers for the swiftly expanding fleet.

Max Schmeling Killed as He Attempts to Escape Captors

CAIRO, Egypt — (AP) — Max Schmeling, former world champion heavyweight boxer, has been killed while trying to escape from British Imperial forces which captured him in the German invasion of Crete, a New Zealand ambulance driver witness declared today.

Returning to Egypt, the ambulance driver said.

"Early in the battle of Crete, a husky German soldier was captured, slightly wounded.

"Speaking English with a strong American accent, he said he was Schmeling and his papers bore that name. He was truculent and surly.

"After talking with him at length, our officers were convinced he was Schmeling.

"Later in the day he was being taken to a field hospital by our ambulance corps when more German parachutists descended on top of us and a dog fight opened.

"Schmeling grabbed a rifle from one of our soldiers who had been wounded and went into action like a wild bull.

"Before he did any damage, however, someone let him have it, and that was the end of Max."

The ambulance driver said he did not know whether Schmeling arrived in Crete by parachute, plane, or glider, but German officials had said previously that he went there as a parachute trooper.

RATE CONTRACT SENT COUNCIL

Committee Takes Lower Rate Offer to Caucus of All Members Tonight.

City council will consider the eight-week-old contract offer of the Ohio Public Service company to lower Mansfield domestic rates for the first time tonight.

The meeting will only be a caucus, however, to discuss information gathered by the public utilities committee. The committee has not yet officially reported on the offer.

Russell D. Porch, chairman of the committee, said today that he would present the contract to council for unofficial consideration. If a favorable reception is given it, Porch said it might possibly be presented at the regular meeting next Tuesday.

In order to fulfill the request of the company to have the contract passed soon enough to allow the lower rates to become effective July 1, council would have to take emergency action. The state law requires that 30 days elapse before the contract becomes effective. Council may be able to make any agreement retroactive to June 1 or may pass the ordinance as an emergency measure.

Indication that no such action

The Life representatives spent the morning in conference with Principal Jesse Beer, John G. Routzon, C. of C. secretary-manager and author Louis Bromfield, who will write continuity for the pictures.

Class day activities at 1:30 p. m. today, were expected to be the first on which the Life photographer would focus his camera. Also slated for pictures will be Baccalaureate services Sunday night in the First Lutheran church and the Senior party in the high school gym and cafeteria next Tuesday night.

Wind-Fanned Flames Level Country Club

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

The picturesque clubhouse at Westbrook Country club two miles northwest of Mansfield, center of the city's summer social activities for the past 33 years, was a mass of debris today after the second disastrous fire in the Mansfield area in six weeks swept the huge frame building late Wednesday afternoon.

About 130 women attending a bridge party in the building fled to safety when the alarm was given in mid-afternoon. The clubhouse opened only last Saturday for the summer season and the party was the first important social event of the season.

Loss was estimated at more than $75,000 by C. P. Fighter, secretary-treasurer of the country club. Firemen saved the locker house just north of the clubhouse. Club officials said about half of the loss was covered by insurance.

Starting in the porte-cochere at the west side of the rustic building, the flames spread so rapidly through the rambling frame structure that firemen had no chance to save the clubhouse. The clubhouse. The clubhouse roof caved in within a half hour after the blaze was discovered.

Hundreds of spectators thronged the steep incline leading up to the clubhouse creating a traffic jam on State Route 39 past the country club entrance. Police, sheriff's deputies, and state highway patrolmen worked for two hours to untangle the traffic.

A strong southwest wind carried the flames directly into the heart of the frame structure despite efforts of club members and employes to hold the fire back with small chemical extinguishers.

Officials of the club said the flames could have started from defective electric wiring or from sparks from a tar heater which was being used near the building to repair the driveway. Employes at the club said the electric line leading to the building was damaged earlier in the afternoon and was sagging over the east driveway when the fire broke out.

Golf Matches To Be Held Despite Fire

Despite the loss of the clubhouse in the fire yesterday afternoon, the Memorial day golf match Friday afternoon will be held anyway. Mixed two-ball foursomes will get under way at 1 p. m. tomorrow in charge of Mrs. Henry R. Talmadge. Picnic supper will be served on the lawn at 6 p. m. and it's BYOF (bring your own food.)

SIDELIGHTS ON BLAZE AT CLUB

Women Lose Valuables, Golfers Have Tough Job Trying To Find Clothing.

Most of the 130 women who fled from the Westbrook clubhouse when the fire was discovered yesterday afternoon lost their hats, coats, purses in the blaze. A few of the wraps and purses were carried out by attendants, but there was so much confusion that some of the valuables were lost anyway.

* * *

The alarm was given by Mrs. Jesse S. Wainwright in the middle of a bridge game. Mrs. Leonard Jones, who left the clubhouse in a big hurry, discovered nearly 30 minutes later that she still held a hand of cards. "I got the best hand I held all afternoon just as the alarm was given and I didn't get a chance to play it," commented Mrs. L. D. Wright.

* * *

Two girls who came here from Wooster last week to work at the clubhouse during the summer lost all their clothing and money in the flames. Heartbroken, they wondered how they would get home. C. F. Fighter, club secretary-treasurer, gave them bus fare to Wooster.

* * *

* * *

The fire spread to the lawn north and east of the clubhouse and left a wide black circle that probably will remain throughout the summer. Big shade trees near the building also were blackened by the heat.

* * *

All Fighter saved in the fire was a portable typewriter. He said office records and equipment burned.

* * *

It was a scene of confusion when golfers tried to find their clubs and clothing which had been carried out of the locker house and piled in a heap near the swimming pool. Some of the men golfers hunted a long time before they located their property and a few said their belongings were lost or carried away.

HUNT SCOUTS

400 Men Broaden Search For Two Youths In Wilds.

KOKADJO, Me.—(AP)—In a race with death — a race that already might be lost—400 men broadened a search today for two teen-age Boy Scouts lost for four days in a danger-filled wilderness east of this tiny hamlet.

The searchers encountered rain, cold, swarming black flies, underbrush, swamps, forest fastnesses and rock-strewn mountains in their efforts to find Paul Atkinson, 14, and Melvin Davis, 15, his step-cousin, who became separated from Atkinson's parents while on a fishing trip Sunday.

Tracks, believed to be those of the boys and made by somebody walking fast or running, were picked up yesterday by bloodhounds, only to be lost, the woodsmen said.

STOCKS MOVE UP SLIGHTLY ON MARKET TODAY

Advances General as Roosevelt Talk Forms Chief Topic on Wall Street.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stock prices moved slightly higher today on a thin trickle of buying orders.

Advances were general toward the second hour but many leaders still had not been traded.

Virtually the sole topic of discussion on Wall Street was President Roosevelt's proclamation of a state of unlimited emergency.

A consensus of operations appeared to be that far-reaching developments—of a type not yet entirely predictable—might be expected in the near future and they consequently exercised caution in undertaking commitments.

Other outstanding items of business news with market co-relations were:

"The greatest automobile sales in history, running around 600,000 cars this month—with a dearth of new cars in prospect;

A record high non-agricultural employment of 37,617,000 persons, indicating mounting consumer goods demand;

Additional increases in gasoline prices and a reduction by 56,000 barrels of gasoline stocks.

BRITISH HAPPY OVER FDR TALK

Jubilant Over Promises To 'Deliver The Goods'; Papers Comment.

It amounts to an iron pact between Allies."

The Evening News termed the address a "final warning to Hitler" and remarked that the "gauntlet has been thrown down"

Throughout Britain, among official quarters and in the streets of the great cities, the towns and hamlets, the people received the words of the American president with utmost enthusiasm.

They declared it a "categorical challenge to Nazidom" which they regarded as leaving no further doubt of Roosevelt's determination to overcome every obstacle to bring swift American aid to the embattled democracies.

In addition, Britons received the speech as proof of the American president's determination to "fight" to preserve the inviolability of America's front doors.

Italians Report Landing on Eastern End of Vital Mediterranean Isle.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(AP)—German troops occupied Candia, Crete, today, DNB, official German news agency, announced. The town's airport and harbor were taken over by the advancing Germans, the news agency said, adding that several hundred Allied soldiers were captured.

(By Associated Press)

Italian troops were reported today to have entered the 10-day-old battle of Crete, landing on the eastern end of the island, while German forces captured the prize harbor of Suda bay on the west. Thus the British, already in dire straits, were caught in a vise.

Amid the losing struggle in Crete, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden gave the first comprehensive statement on Britain's war aims and declared:

"We must never forget that Germany is the worst master Europe has known. Five times in the last century she has violated the peace. She must never be in a position to play that role again."

Seizure of Suda bay gave the Germans a bridgehead for landing sea-borne troops, and military experts said it may prove to be the turning-point of the struggle—the beginning of another British debacle.

Hitler's high command reported that Nazi mountain troops, striking on beyond Suda bay, reached Almyro bay to the east in pursuit of the 'defeated" British.

The German communique said Nazi forces had taken a large number of prisoners.

Fascist press dispatches reported also that hundreds of little Greek sailboats, loaded with German troops, had been safely escorted to Crete under the guns of Italian warships.

Italian troops belatedly entered the conflict yesterday, it was reported.

"The landing was made in perfect order at the extreme eastern tip of the island with companies of soldiers and sailors," Fascist informants said.

"Its effect is to create for the commander of the British imperial forces a sudden new front to the east, when German pressure they

Mayor Has His Way Again, Places Test Fountain at Park

Mayor William J. Locke had his way again today as workers in the waterworks department installed a new $25 porcelain drinking fountain at the tennis courts at Maple park over the protests of Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton and the expressed wish of city council.

Council members and Crafton wanted the fountain installed at Park avenue west and Walnut street so that it would be given a maximum of use in a preliminary test. Before Crafton's arrival in the Municipal building this morning, however, the fountain had been taken, under orders by the mayor, to Maple Lake park, least attended of all parks in the city.

FDR MUM ON DELIVERY PLAN

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt adopted the strategy of silence today on future methods for delivering the goods to Great Britain.

"You don't telegraph your moves anymore in the world of today," one service official explained, referring to the president's statement that army and navy technicians were devising new safeguards.

However, Chairman Reynolds (D-N. C.) of the senate military committee looked for "full convoys of some description." He said that was his interpretation of the president's fireside chat pledge to see that needed supplies reached England safely.

On the other hand, no less a personage than Vice President Wallace was reported to be disappointed that his chief had not been more specific as to how delivery would be assured.

Mr. Roosevelt did nothing to quell conjecture yesterday at a special press conference. He disclaimed any intention of seeking change or repeal of the neutrality act, contending that it in no way infringed on the principle of the freedom of the seas, which he

Only Three Survivors, Out of 1,300 on Hood, Show Up.

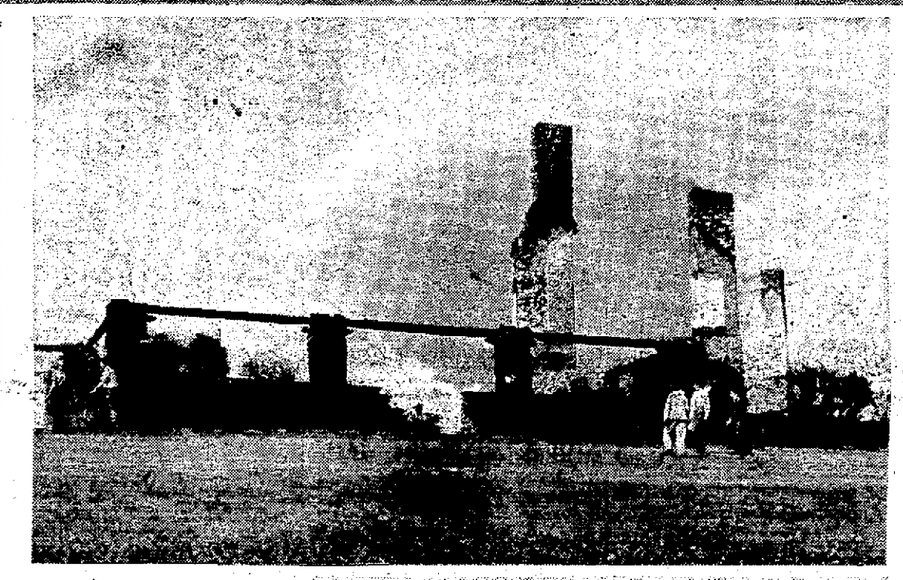
LONDON—(INS)—Hopes that a considerable number of men might have survived the explosion that sank the British battle cruiser Hood under the guns of the German battleship Bismarck appeared groundless today.

Information reaching London showed that only three survivors from the Hood have turned up so far—one officer and two sailors, out of a total complement of more than 1,300.

An equally heavy loss of German life was reported when the Bismarck was sunk by avenging British naval units.

DIES OF FRACTURE

ZANESVILLE —(INS)— George Smothers, 21, died of a skull fracture to become the second victim of an auto-truck crash in U. S. Route 40. Harry Glover, 18, was killed outright. Both victims were from Newark.



MEMORIAL DAY PROGRAM SET

Parade to Cemetery at 2 P. M. Starts Exercises in Tribute To Soldier Dead.

Mansfielders will pause Friday to pay tribute to its soldier dead at Memorial services in the morning in Central park and in the Mansfield cemetery in the afternoon.

Ringing of the old fire bell in Central park by Fire Chief Seeburger at 2 p. m. will start a parade from the downtown area to the cemetery where Atty. Charles R. Barefoot of Toledo will be the principal speaker at Memorial ceremonies.

The American Legion drum and bugle corps and three Mansfield high school bands will march in the parade with members of veterans' and patriotic organizations, Boy and Girl Scouts, and city officials.

Cloudy and cool weather was forecast for Friday by the weatherman who said thundershowers tonight will bring the drop in temperature.

City parks and recreation centers are preparing for a big day tomorrow as thousands of persons go outdoors for the first holiday week-end of the spring and summer season. Swimming pools will open at Liberty and Casino parks.

Public offices, stores, and schools in the city will be closed tomorrow. County and state offices will remain closed over Sat-

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A combined army-navy airforce of 56,000 warplanes, informed legislators disclosed today, will be provided by the funds which President Roosevelt has asked of congress. The full strength is expected to be reached by the fall of 1943.

Members of the house military appropriations subcommittee said Robert B. Patterson, undersecretary of war, had told them that with funds in the $9,452,800,000 war department supply bill which the subcommittee approved late yesterday, the army air corps would be able to acquire a total of 46,000 planes.

The huge appropriation—largest single bill since World war days—was increased to the last minute to include the $2,790,890,785 requested Tuesday by President Roosevelt to give the army 13,000 additional planes.

The chief executive also asked $539,046,600 for the navy which committee members said would complete the fleet's 10,000-plane program.

Plans already have been announced by the office of production management for stepping up the output of heavy bombers to 500 a month in efforts to meet the need of both Britain and this country for such long-range aerial striking power. There even were indications that this rate would be accelerated further.

PRICE GOES UP

Legislation Okayed Prohibiting Cut-Rate Cigaret Prices.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Legislation prohibiting cut rate cigaret selling goes into effect three months hence with the result that Ohioans as a whole will pay about $4,000,000 a year more for their smokes.

Gov. John W. Bricker yesterday signed a bill requiring retailers to take a profit of at least 6 per cent above cost of the cigarets and expense for handling.

RATE CONTRACT SENT COUNCIL

Committee Takes Lower Rate Offer to Caucus of All Members Tonight.

City council will consider the eight-week-old contract offer of the Ohio Public Service company to lower Mansfield domestic rates for the first time tonight.

The meeting will only be a caucus, however, to discuss information gathered by the public utilities committee. The committee has not yet officially reported on the offer.

Russell D. Porch, chairman of the committee, said today that he would present the contract to council for unofficial consideration. If a favorable reception is given it, Porch said it might possibly be presented at the regular meeting next Tuesday.

In order to fulfill the request of the company to have the contract passed soon enough to allow the lower rates to become effective July 1, council would have to take emergency action. The state law requires that 30 days elapse before the contract becomes effective. Council may be able to make any agreement retroactive to June 1 or may pass the ordinance as an emergency measure.

Indication that no such action

'Life' Comes to A Commencement —In Mansfield

Cameras started clicking at Mansfield Senior high school today as Life magazine representatives arrived to "cover" pre-commencement and graduation exercises.

Miss Lisbeth de Morinni, reporter, and Alfred Eisenstaedt, photographer, came to Mansfield from New York last night, and went to the high school today.

The Life representatives spent the morning in conference with Principal Jesse Beer, John G. Routzon, C. of C. secretary-manager and author Louis Bromfield, who will write continuity for the pictures.

Class day activities at 1:30 p. m. today, were expected to be the first on which the Life photographer would focus his camera. Also slated for pictures will be Baccalaureate services Sunday night in the First Lutheran church and the Senior party in the high school gym and cafeteria next Tuesday night.

Max Schmeling Killed as He Attempts to Escape Captors

CAIRO, Egypt — (AP) — Max Schmeling, former world champion heavyweight boxer, has been killed while trying to escape from British Imperial forces which captured him in the German invasion of Crete, a New Zealand ambulance driver witness declared today.

Returning to Egypt, the ambulance driver said.

"Early in the battle of Crete, a husky German soldier was captured, slightly wounded.

"Speaking English with a strong American accent, he said he was Schmeling and his papers bore that name. He was truculent and surly.

"After talking with him at length, our officers were convinced he was Schmeling.

"Later in the day he was being taken to a field hospital by our ambulance corps when more German parachutists descended on top of us and a dog fight opened.

"Schmeling grabbed a rifle from one of our soldiers who had been wounded and went into action like a wild bull.

"Before he did any damage, however, someone let him have it, and that was the end of Max."

The ambulance driver said he did not know whether Schmeling arrived in Crete by parachute, plane, or glider, but German officials had said previously that he went there as a parachute trooper.

Wind-Fanned Flames Level Country Club

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

The picturesque clubhouse at Westbrook Country club two miles northwest of Mansfield, center of the city's summer social activities for the past 33 years, was a mass of debris today after the second disastrous fire in the Mansfield area in six weeks swept the huge frame building late Wednesday afternoon.

About 130 women attending a bridge party in the building fled to safety when the alarm was given in mid-afternoon. The clubhouse opened only last Saturday for the summer season and the party was the first important social event of the season.

Loss was estimated at more than $75,000 by C. P. Fighter, secretary-treasurer of the country club. Firemen saved the locker house just north of the clubhouse. Club officials said about half of the loss was covered by insurance.

Starting in the porte-cochere at the west side of the rustic building, the flames spread so rapidly through the rambling frame structure that firemen had no chance to save the clubhouse. The clubhouse. The clubhouse roof caved in within a half hour after the blaze was discovered.

Hundreds of spectators thronged the steep incline leading up to the clubhouse creating a traffic jam on State Route 39 past the country club entrance. Police, sheriff's deputies, and state highway patrolmen worked for two hours to untangle the traffic.

A strong southwest wind carried the flames directly into the heart of the frame structure despite efforts of club members and employes to hold the fire back with small chemical extinguishers.

Officials of the club said the flames could have started from defective electric wiring or from sparks from a tar heater which was being used near the building to repair the driveway. Employes at the club said the electric line leading to the building was damaged earlier in the afternoon and was sagging over the east driveway when the fire broke out.

Golf Matches To Be Held Despite Fire

Despite the loss of the clubhouse in the fire yesterday afternoon, the Memorial day golf match Friday afternoon will be held anyway. Mixed two-ball foursomes will get under way at 1 p. m. tomorrow in charge of Mrs. Henry R. Talmadge. Picnic supper will be served on the lawn at 6 p. m. and it's BYOF (bring your own food.)

SIDELIGHTS ON BLAZE AT CLUB

Most of the 130 women who fled from the Westbrook clubhouse when the fire was discovered yesterday afternoon lost their hats, coats, purses in the blaze. A few of the wraps and purses were carried out by attendants, but there was so much confusion that some of the valuables were lost anyway.

* * *

The alarm was given by Mrs. Jesse S. Wainwright in the middle of a bridge game. Mrs. Leonard Jones, who left the clubhouse in a big hurry, discovered nearly 30 minutes later that she still held a hand of cards. "I got the best hand I held all afternoon just as the alarm was given and I didn't get a chance to play it," commented Mrs. L. D. Wright.

* * *

Two girls who came here from Wooster last week to work at the clubhouse during the summer lost all their clothing and money in the flames. Heartbroken, they wondered how they would get home. C. F. Fighter, club secretary-treasurer, gave them bus fare to Wooster.

* * *

* * *

The fire spread to the lawn north and east of the clubhouse and left a wide black circle that probably will remain throughout the summer. Big shade trees near the building also were blackened by the heat.

* * *

All Fighter saved in the fire was a portable typewriter. He said office records and equipment burned.

* * *

It was a scene of confusion when golfers tried to find their clubs and clothing which had been carried out of the locker house and piled in a heap near the swimming pool. Some of the men golfers hunted a long time before they located their property and a few said their belongings were lost or carried away.

HUNT SCOUTS

400 Men Broaden Search For Two Youths In Wilds.

KOKADJO, Me.—(AP)—In a race with death — a race that already might be lost—400 men broadened a search today for two teen-age Boy Scouts lost for four days in a danger-filled wilderness east of this tiny hamlet.

The searchers encountered rain, cold, swarming black flies, underbrush, swamps, forest fastnesses and rock-strewn mountains in their efforts to find Paul Atkinson, 14, and Melvin Davis, 15, his step-cousin, who became separated from Atkinson's parents while on a fishing trip Sunday.

Tracks, believed to be those of the boys and made by somebody walking fast or running, were picked up yesterday by bloodhounds, only to be lost, the woodsmen said.

STOCKS MOVE UP SLIGHTLY ON MARKET TODAY

Advances General as Roosevelt Talk Forms Chief Topic on Wall Street.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stock prices moved slightly higher today on a thin trickle of buying orders.

Advances were general toward the second hour but many leaders still had not been traded.

A consensus of operations appeared to be that far-reaching developments—of a type not yet entirely predictable—might be expected in the near future and they consequently exercised caution in undertaking commitments.

Other outstanding items of business news with market co-relations were:

The greatest automobile sales in history, running around 600,000 cars this month—with a dearth of new cars in prospect;

A record high non-agricultural employment of 37,617,000 persons, indicating mounting consumer goods demand;

Additional increases in gasoline prices and a reduction by 56,000 barrels of gasoline stocks.

BRITISH HAPPY OVER FDR TALK

Jubilant Over Promises To 'Deliver The Goods'; Papers Comment.

It amounts to an iron pact between Allies."

The Evening News termed the address a "final warning to Hitler" and remarked that the "gauntlet has been thrown down."

Throughout Britain, among official quarters and in the streets of the great cities, the towns and hamlets, the people received the words of the American president with utmost enthusiasm.

They declared it a "categorical challenge to Nazidom" which they regarded as leaving no further doubt of Roosevelt's determination to overcome every obstacle to bring swift American aid to the embattled democracies.

In addition, Britons received the speech as proof of the American president's determination to "fight" to preserve the inviolability of America's front doors.

Italians Report Landing on Eastern End of Vital Mediterranean Isle.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(AP)—German troops occupied Candia, Crete, today, DNB, official German news agency, announced. The town's airport and harbor were taken over by the advancing Germans, the news agency said, adding that several hundred Allied soldiers were captured.

(By Associated Press)

Italian troops were reported today to have entered the 10-day-old battle of Crete, landing on the eastern end of the island, while German forces captured the prize harbor of Suda bay on the west. Thus the British, already in dire straits, were caught in a vise.

Amid the losing struggle in Crete, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden gave the first comprehensive statement on Britain's war aims and declared:

"We must never forget that Germany is the worst master Europe has known. Five times in the last century she has violated the peace. She must never be in a position to play that role again."

Seizure of Suda bay gave the Germans a bridgehead for landing sea-borne troops, and military experts said it may prove to be the turning-point of the struggle—the beginning of another British debacle.

Hitler's high command reported that Nazi mountain troops, striking on beyond Suda bay, reached Almyro bay to the east in pursuit of the 'defeated" British.

The German communique said Nazi forces had taken a large number of prisoners.

Fascist press dispatches reported also that hundreds of little Greek sailboats, loaded, with German troops, had been safely escorted to Crete under the guns of Italian warships.

Italian troops belatedly entered the conflict yesterday, it was reported.

"The landing was made in perfect order at the extreme eastern tip of the island with companies of soldiers and sailors," Fascist informants said.

"Its effect is to create for the commander of the British imperial forces a sudden new front to the east, when German pressure they

Mayor Has His Way Again, Places Test Fountain at Park

Mayor William J. Locke had his way again today as workers in the waterworks department installed a new $25 porcelain drinking fountain at the tennis courts at Maple park over the protests of Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton and the expressed wish of city council.

Council members and Crafton wanted the fountain installed at Park avenue west and Walnut street so that it would be given a maximum of use in a preliminary test. Before Crafton's arrival in the Municipal building this morning, however, the fountain had been taken, under orders by the mayor, to Maple Lake park, least attended of all parks in the city.

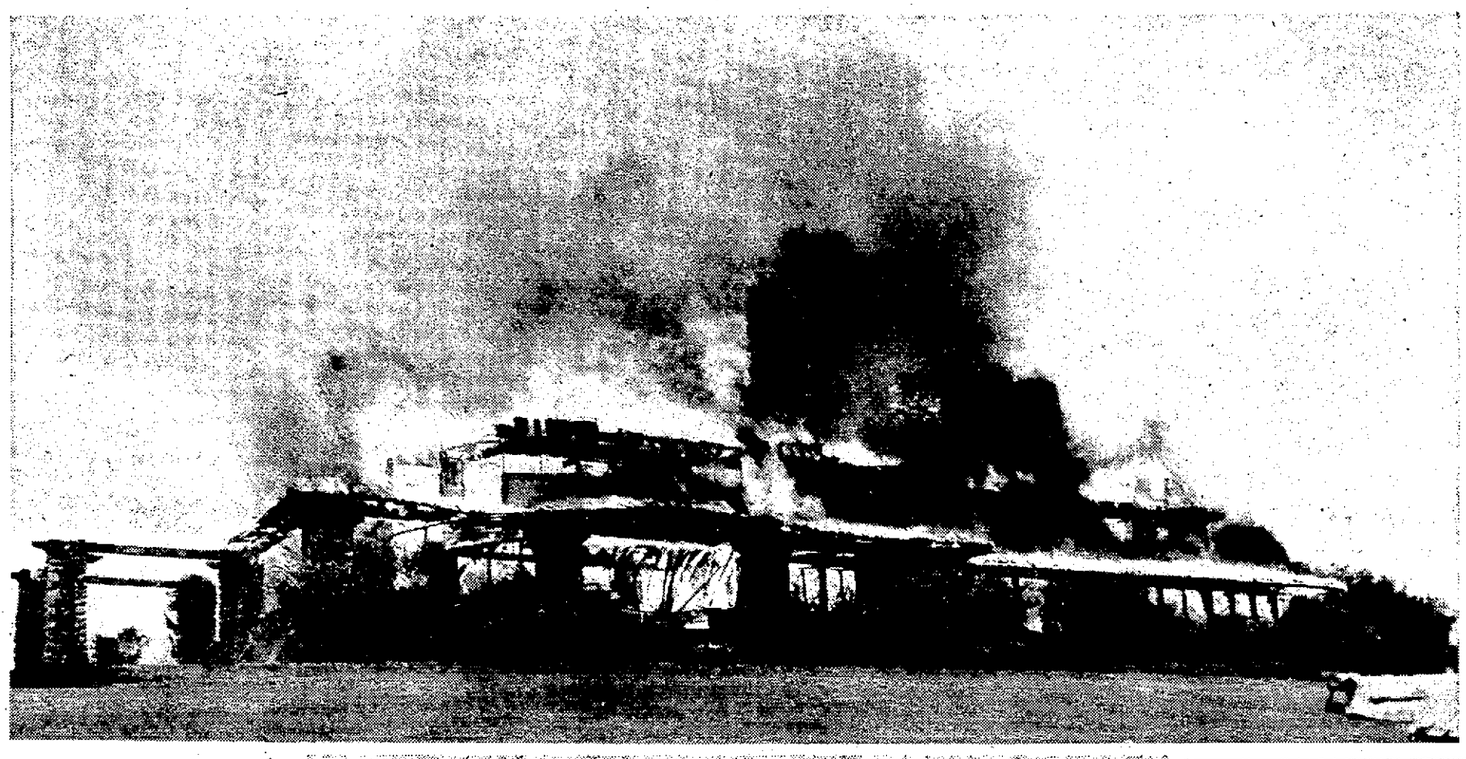
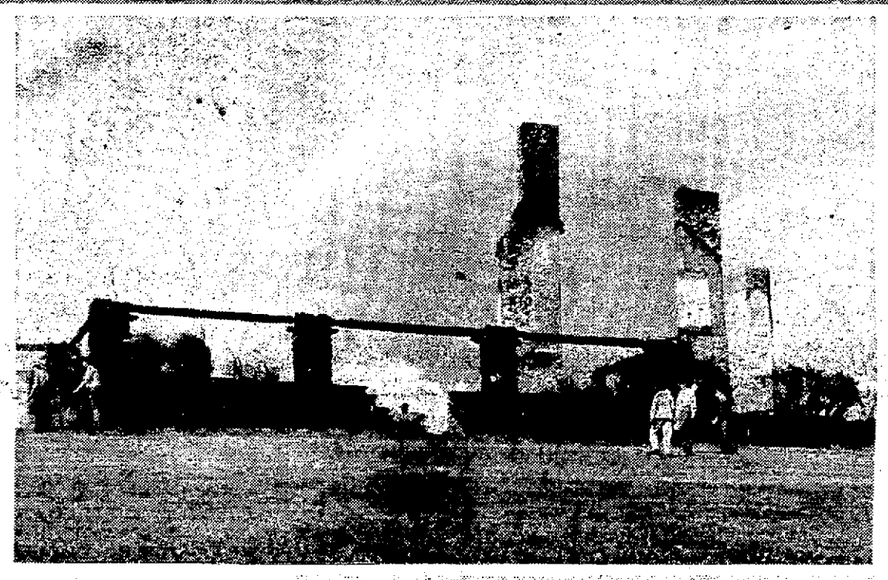
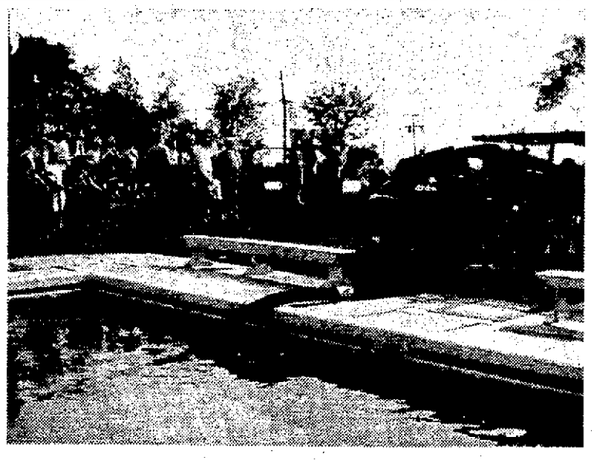
As Spectacular Blaze Swept Westbrook Country Club







The top picture, snapped by The News-Journal photographer at the peak of the fire which destroyed the clubhouse at the Westbrook Country club late yesterday, shows flames leaping high in the air as a strong wind fanned them through the big frame building. On the top floor at the left some beds are outlined against the flames. In the center, only three huge chimneys and the stone and metal foundation of the building remained early last night, scarcely two hours after the fire started. Below, firemen are shown drawing water out of the club swimming pool to keep the fire from spreading to the locker house north of the burning clubhouse.

FDR MUM ON DELIVERY PLAN

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt adopted the strategy of silence today on future methods for delivering the goods to Great Britain.

"You don't telegraph your moves anymore in the world of today," one service official explained, referring to the president's statement that army and navy technicians were devising new safeguards.

However, Chairman Reynolds (D-N. C.) of the senate military committee looked for "full convoys of some description." He said that was his interpretation of the president's fireside chat pledge to see that needed supplies reached England safely.

On the other hand, no less a personage than Vice President Wallace was reported to be disappointed that his chief had not been more specific as to how delivery would be assured.

Mr. Roosevelt did nothing to quell conjecture yesterday at a special press conference. He disclaimed any intention of seeking change or repeal of the neutrality act, contending that it in no way infringed on the principle of the freedom of the seas, which he

Only Three Survivors, Out of 1,300 on Hood, Show Up.

LONDON—(INS)—Hopes that a considerable number of men might have survived the explosion that sank the British battle cruiser Hood under the guns of the German battleship Bismarck appeared groundless today.

Information reaching London showed that only three survivors from the Hood have turned up so far—one officer and two sailors, out of a total complement of more than 1,300.

An equally heavy loss of German life was reported when the Bismarck was sunk by avenging British naval units.

MEMORIAL DAY PROGRAM SET

Parade to Cemetery at 2 P. M. Starts Exercises in Tribute To Soldier Dead.

Mansfielders will pause Friday to pay tribute to its soldier dead at Memorial services in the morning in Central park and in the Mansfield cemetery in the afternoon.

Ringing of the old fire bell in Central park by Fire Chief Seeburger at 2 p. m. will start a parade from the downtown area to the cemetery where Atty. Charles R. Barefoot of Toledo will be the principal speaker at Memorial ceremonies.

The American Legion drum and bugle corps and three Mansfield high school bands will march in the parade with members of veterans' and patriotic organizations, Boy and Girl Scouts, and city officials.

Cloudy and cool weather was forecast for Friday by the weatherman who said thundershowers tonight will bring the drop in temperature.

City parks and recreation centers are preparing for a big day tomorrow as thousands of persons go outdoors for the first holiday week-end of the spring and summer season. Swimming pools will open at Liberty and Casino parks.

Public offices, stores, and schools in the city will be closed tomorrow. County and state offices will remain closed over Sat-

Max Schmeling Killed as He Attempts to Escape Captors

CAIRO, Egypt — (AP) — Max Schmeling, former world champion heavyweight boxer, has been killed while trying to escape from British Imperial forces which captured him in the German invasion of Crete, a New Zealand ambulance driver witness declared today.

Returning to Egypt, the ambulance driver said.

"Early in the battle of Crete, a husky German soldier was captured, slightly wounded.

"Speaking English with a strong American accent, he said he was Schmeling and his papers bore that name. He was truculent and surly.

"After talking with him at length, our officers were convinced he was Schmeling.

"Later in the day he was being taken to a field hospital by our ambulance corps when more German parachutists descended on top of us and a dog fight opened.

"Schmeling grabbed a rifle from one of our soldiers who had been wounded and went into action like a wild bull.

"Before he did any damage, however, someone let him have it, and that was the end of Max."

The ambulance driver said he did not know whether Schmeling arrived in Crete by parachute, plane, or glider, but German officials had said previously that he went there as a parachute trooper.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A combined army-navy airforce of 56,000 warplanes, informed legislators disclosed today, will be provided by the funds which President Roosevelt has asked of congress. The full strength is expected to be reached by the fall of 1943.

Members of the house military appropriations subcommittee said Robert B. Patterson, undersecretary of war, had told them that with funds in the $9,452,800,000 war department supply bill which the subcommittee approved late yesterday, the army air corps would be able to acquire a total of 46,000 planes.

The huge appropriation—largest single bill since World war days—was increased to the last minute to include the $2,790,890,785 requested Tuesday by President Roosevelt to give the army 13,000 additional planes.

The chief executive also asked $539,046,600 for the navy which committee members said would complete the fleet's 10,000-plane program.

Plans already have been announced by the office of production management for stepping up the output of heavy bombers to 500 a month in efforts to meet the need of both Britain and this country for such long-range aerial striking power. There even were indications that this rate would be accelerated further.

PRICE GOES UP

Legislation Okayed Prohibiting Cut-Rate Cigaret Prices.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Legislation prohibiting cut rate cigaret selling goes into effect three months hence with the result that Ohioans as a whole will pay about $4,000,000 a year more for their smokes.

Gov. John W. Bricker yesterday signed a bill requiring retailers to take a profit of at least 6 per cent above cost of the cigarets and expense for handling.

SITES CHOSEN

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Toledo, and 11 other cities have been selected by the United States navy as sites for 23 new schools to train enlisted men as petty officers for the swiftly expanding fleet.

RATE CONTRACT SENT COUNCIL

Committee Takes Lower Rate Offer to Caucus of All Members Tonight.

City council will consider the eight-week-old contract offer of the Ohio Public Service company to lower Mansfield domestic rates for the first time tonight.

The meeting will only be a caucus, however, to discuss information gathered by the public utilities committee. The committee has not yet officially reported on the offer.

Russell D. Porch, chairman of the committee, said today that he would present the contract to council for unofficial consideration. If a favorable reception is given it, Porch said it might possibly be presented at the regular meeting next Tuesday.

In order to fulfill the request of the company to have the contract passed soon enough to allow the lower rates to become effective July 1, council would have to take emergency action. The state law requires that 30 days elapse before the contract becomes effective. Council may be able to make any agreement retroactive to June 1 or may pass the ordinance as an emergency measure.

Indication that no such action

'Life' Comés to A Commencement —In Mansfield

Cameras started clicking at Mansfield Senior high school today as Life magazine representatives arrived to "cover" pre-commencement and graduation exercises.

Miss Lisbeth de Morinni, reporter, and Alfred Eisenstaedt, photographer, came to Mansfield from New York last night, and went to the high school today.

The Life representatives spent the morning in conference with Principal Jesse Beer, John G. Routzon, C. of C. secretary-manager and author Louis Bromfield, who will write continuity for the pictures.

Class day activities at 1:30 p. m. today, were expected to be the first on which the Life photographer would focus his camera. Also slated for pictures will be Baccalaureate services Sunday night in the First Lutheran church and the Senior party in the high school gym and cafeteria next Tuesday night.

Wind-Fanned Flames Level Country Club

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

The picturesque clubhouse at Westbrook Country club two miles northwest of Mansfield, center of the city's summer social activities for the past 33 years, was a mass of debris today after the second disastrous fire in the Mansfield area in six weeks swept the huge frame building late Wednesday afternoon.

About 130 women attending a bridge party in the building fled to safety when the alarm was given in mid-afternoon. The clubhouse opened only last Saturday for the summer season and the party was the first important social event of the season.

Loss was estimated at more than $75,000 by C. P. Fighter, secretary-treasurer of the country club. Firemen saved the locker house just north of the clubhouse. Club officials said about half of the loss was covered by insurance.

Starting in the porte-cochere at the west side of the rustic building, the flames spread so rapidly through the rambling frame structure that firemen had no chance to save the clubhouse. The clubhouse. The clubhouse roof caved in within a half hour after the blaze was discovered.

Hundreds of spectators thronged the steep incline leading up to the clubhouse creating a traffic jam on State Route 39 past the country club entrance. Police, sheriff's deputies, and state highway patrolmen worked for two hours to untangle the traffic.

A strong southwest wind carried the flames directly into the heart of the frame structure despite efforts of club members and employes to hold the fire back with small chemical extinguishers.

Officials of the club said the flames could have started from defective electric wiring or from sparks from a tar heater which was being used near the building to repair the driveway. Employes at the club said the electric line leading to the building was damaged earlier in the afternoon and was sagging over the east driveway when the fire broke out.

Golf Matches To Be Held Despite Fire

Despite the loss of the clubhouse in the fire yesterday afternoon, the Memorial day golf match Friday afternoon will be held anyway. Mixed two-ball foursomes will get under way at 1 p. m. tomorrow in charge of Mrs. Henry R. Talmadge. Picnic supper will be served on the lawn at 6 p. m. and it's BYOF (bring your own food.)

SIDELIGHTS ON BLAZE AT CLUB

Women Lose Valuables, Golfers Have Tough Job Trying To Find Clothing.

Most of the 130 women who fled from the Westbrook clubhouse when the fire was discovered yesterday afternoon lost their hats, coats, purses in the blaze. A few of the wraps and purses were carried out by attendants, but there was so much confusion that some of the valuables were lost anyway.

* * *

The alarm was given by Mrs. Jesse S. Wainwright in the middle of a bridge game. Mrs. Leonard Jones, who left the clubhouse in a big hurry, discovered nearly 30 minutes later that she still held a hand of cards. "I got the best hand I held all afternoon just as the alarm was given and I didn't get a chance to play it," commented Mrs. L. D. Wright.

* * *

Two girls who came here from Wooster last week to work at the clubhouse during the summer lost all their clothing and money in the flames. Heartbroken, they wondered how they would get home. C. F. Fighter, club secretary-treasurer, gave them bus fare to Wooster.

* * *

* * *

The fire spread to the lawn north and east of the clubhouse and left a wide black circle that probably will remain throughout the summer. Big shade trees near the building also were blackened by the heat.

All Fighter saved in the fire was a portable typewriter. He said office records and equipment burned.

HUNT SCOUTS

400 Men Broaden Search For Two Youths In Wilds.

KOKADJO, Me.—(AP)—In a race with death — a race that already might be lost—400 men broadened a search today for two teen-age Boy Scouts lost for four days in a danger-filled wilderness east of this tiny hamlet.

The searchers encountered rain, cold, swarming black flies, underbrush, swamps, forest fastnesses and rock-strewn mountains in their efforts to find Paul Atkinson, 14, and Melvin Davis, 15, his step-cousin, who became separated from Atkinson's parents while on a fishing trip Sunday.

Tracks, believed to be those of the boys and made by somebody walking fast or running, were picked up yesterday by bloodhounds, only to be lost, the woodsmen said.

FLAMES LEVEL COUNTRY CLUB, LOSS $75,000

130 Women Attending Bridge Party Routed; Wiring or Spark Blamed.

Two Mansfield fire trucks answered the alarm, but by the time firemen arrived the clubhouse was beyond saving. Although handicapped by lack of water, they kept the locker house soaked during the fire and protected it. The heat was so intense that it scorched the paint on the locker house, while flaming embers showered the smaller building for more than an hour.

Intense heat from the clubhouse blaze ignited the water tank high above the building, but the water it contained prevented the tank from collapsing. Spectators watched the top rim and the wood base of the tank burn slowly for more than an hour, expecting it to come crashing down.

The fire was discovered about 3:45 p. m. by Mrs. Jesse S. Wainwright who was sitting on the porch at the west side of the building.

"I saw smoke pouring from the roof at the corner of the porch over my head and ran inside to give the alarm," Mrs. Wainwright said.

Most of the women at the bridge party filed out in an orderly manner. Several of them carried fire extinguishers up to the second floor to Harry Rowan, club attendant, and William Ferguson, jr., colored, a houseboy, who tried to battle the blaze with the hand equipment.

Rowan was nearly overcome by the dense smoke inside the clubhouse as he fled to safety after giving up the fight.

"I tried to keep the stream from the extinguishers on the blaze until the fire started coming in the second story window where I was standing, and then I decided it was time to get out of there," he related.

"The smoke was thick inside and by the time I reached the back door I could hardly stand on my feet, but I managed to get outside into the air," he said.

Women who were in the clubhouse when the fire broke out praised Ferguson and Rowan for their work in fighting the flames.

Ferguson, who began to work at the club only last week, said he lost his clothing and his money in the fire.

One of the first to see the fire was Herbert S. Jones, director of the club. He was going up the driveway to the clubhouse in his car when he saw flames lapping at the corner of the building.

"We probably could have saved the building if the fire department had been there then, for there was only a small hole burned in the roof," Jones said.

Clubhouse employes and others who were there when the fire was discovered began carrying furnishings out of the building, but the flames spread so rapidly that only the radio, four sofas, and about 15 small chairs and tables were saved.

The salvage work was directed by Mrs. Frank Thornton, clubhouse manager, who helped take furniture out of the burning structure. Approximately a dozen employes of the club who lived in the clubhouse lost their personal belongings.

Golfers and caddies removed clubs and clothing from the locker house when flames threatened it, but firemen kept a steady stream of water on the building during the clubhouse fire and were able to save the smaller structure.

Extensive renovating inside the clubhouse and on the grounds had just been completed, club officials said. The clubhouse was redecorated inside and considerable new equipment had been added. Outside, the grounds were resodded and other beautification work was in progress.

With loss of the clubhouse, a number of social functions scheduled for the late spring and early summer were cancelled or postponed. The Kiwanis club's ladies' party which was to have been held last night in the clubhouse was held at noon today in the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Plans had been completed for the annual Memorial day dance Friday night at the club, officially opening the summer season.

Fighter said members of the club probably would meet tonight to discuss plans for a new clubhouse, but even if work is started immediately on a new building it is not expected to be ready for use this season. With the locker house saved, golf will continue as usual on the course, club officials said.

The rustic old clubhouse had served members since the club was established at the present location. Built in 1908 at a cost of $75,000, the clubhouse was opened in the early summer of that year. Members recalled last night that a Fourth of July dance in 1908 was the first big social function in the building. Equipment in the building was valued at approximately $10,000.

The fire was the second at the club since it was established on the hill top. The first locker house was destroyed by flames about 28 years ago, members said. The present locker house was erected soon after the fire.

The Westbrook club, the city's leading social organization, was established at the site northwest of the city shortly before the clubhouse was built. Before that the city's leading golf club was known as the Mansfield Country club. The clubhouse was south of North lake at about the place where Rae avenue ends at the lake. At that time the west side of the city was thinly populated and the golf course covered the area north of West Fourth street in the area around North Lake park.

NAZIS SEIZE PRIZE HARBOR OF SUDA BAY

London military quarters acknowledged frankly a "serious deterioration" in the situation in the last 24 hours.

The British admitted that capture of Suda bay, the best harbor on the 160-mile-long island, probably would be the deciding factor in the struggle.

It was just a year ago today, incidentally, that the Allies, in retreat from the bloody battle of Flanders, opened the flood sluices around Dunkerque to guard the last escape port to England.

Under orders to fight to the death, hopelessly outnumbered British troops were reported yielding ground slowly, in bitter fighting, before the onslaught of Nazi forces east of Suda bay.

While big German transport planes, operating from the Greek mainland 100 miles away, ferried a steady stream of reinforcements, there was no indication that the British had made any attempt to land more troops.

The Germans said flatly that the British were trying to flee the island, declaring that Stuka divebombers sank five transports and damaged two others in Suda bay yesterday, inflicting heavy losses on Allied troops attempting to board the ships.

Italy's high command said Fascist warplanes scored torpedo hits on three British cruisers and bombed another in Crete waters.

Lack of air defense again appeared to have been the "Achilles heel" of the Allies. Greek Prime Minister Emmanuel Tsouderous said German bombers had smashed the principal Crete cities of Canea, the capital, Candia and Retimo with such fury that "not one stone was left standing."

Tsouderous charged that the German raiders "ruthlessly machine-gunned" the Crete civilian population, particularly children, and that the cities were "literally plowed up by bombs."

While the battle raged on Crete, sharp fighting surged along the Libyan-Egyptian border, where German-Italian forces, advancing on a 30-mile front yesterday, seized strategic Halfaya (Hellfire) Pass south of the frontier post of Salum.

Reuters (British news agency) reported the Axis advance had been halted and London military circles expressed doubt that it heralded a general Egyptian offensive aimed at Suez. The probable purpose of the operation, these sources said, was to divert the British fleet from the defense of Crete.

The war was extended meanwhile to another sector of North Africa when RAF planes, pursuing a Libya-bound Italian convoy, attacked the French Tunisian port of Sfax, thereby widening the breach in British-French relations.

Reports from Sfax said the assault began when the Italian ships sought refuge in the harbor of the French colony. Two Italian vessels were reported hit, a French steamer set afire and a number of civilians wounded.

On the western warfront, the Luftwaffe carried out its most extensive nocturnal raids on the British Isles in nearly two weeks, attacking northern Ireland as well as scattered points in England.

Some casualties were reported in Liverpool, but the attack was not concentrated and apparently damage nowhere was extensive.

British bombers struck back with raids on northern Germany.

Mayor Has His Way Again, Places Test Fountain at Park

tains but asked that one be put to a test before ordering the remainder. Crafton had previously announced that the fountain would be placed downtown.

Fred Miller, chairman of council's finance committee, pointed out that attendance at Maple park is much lower than most of the city's parks and that installation of a fountain there would not give the fountain an adequate test.

Locke triumphed before when he went over the heads of his service director and City Engineer W. C. Statler by countermanding their orders to keep the Park avenue east subway closed during the construction of a water line. His aids said that one-way traffic would be too dangerous for workmen and motorists but the mayor insisted that traffic be maintained.

is contemplated was made by Porch who said that no ordinance had been drawn up as yet. The ordinance form offered by the company does not include legal technicalities which the committee would like cleared up before recommendation to council.

Porch stated that the company yesterday informed him that it would be unable to change its rate scale for "middle bracket" consumers. Company officials pointed out to Porch that the present rate scale will bring sizeable benefits to about 80 per cent of the consumers. Porch and Arthur L. Croak, a member of his committee, approached the company yesterday with proposal that the reductions be made more uniform.

The committee decided at a Tuesday night meeting that reductions for "middle bracket" consumers would not be as high as those in the lower and higher brackets. It planned to ask the company to adjust their rates to increase the "middle bracket" reductions.

Under the terms of the proposed contract, city consumers would save $70,000 annually or $350,000 in the five years in which the contract would be in effect.

FDR MUM ON DELIVERY PLAN

formally reasserted for the United States Tuesday night.

By ruling out action on the neutrality law, the president eliminated the possibility of American merchant ships being used to carry cargoes through the present combat zones. However, this caused one official to recall Mr. Roosevelt's specific assertions in the past that the combat zone quarantine did not apply to the nation's naval vessels, which were free to go wherever their missions took them.

President Roosevelt also told reporters yesterday that he contemplated no executive orders at present to invoke any of the numerous broad powers conferred on him by the proclamation of an unlimited national emergency. This tended to confirm authoritative reports that the president's purpose was to unify the country, as he privately expressed it.

The question of the president's emergency authority was raised indirectly by reports of a threatened acute power shortage throughout the nation. The federal power commission was disclosed to be studying ways for diverting electricity from civilian use to defense industrial purposes to avert production stoppages. The unlimited emergency gives Mr. Roosevelt authority to assume control of all power-producing facilities, if necessary, to keep munitions production rolling.

For the moment, however, the major discussion centered on delivering the goods to Britain.

President Roosevelt, in response to press conference questions, stated that convoys in the 1917 sense were outmoded. Then, he pointed out, there were only submarines to combat, whereas today merchantmen must be protected from submarines, surface raiders and bombers.

American patrol ships in the Atlantic, he repeated, are seeking to locate where any sky, surface or subsurface raider is at a given time. He conceded that the patrols were not 100 per cent successful, but added cryptically that they were growing more effective every day.

The president turned aside several questions with the observation that their answers would provide just the information Adolf Hitler would like to have. One of the things he thought Hitler would like to know was whether patrol vessels had been ordered to resort to new measures to protect commerce.

She died Tuesday following an illness of several weeks. Surviving are her husband and a second brother, Leo Stout of Ashland. She was a member of the Clearcreek Christian church and had served as a teacher and treasurer of the Sunday school.

Summertime Arrives

A HAZE of warmth falls over town and countryside, making city streets blistering canyons at noon and sending shimmering waves of torridity up from the long sun-beaten stretches of open highway.

At nightfall the air has a tangible softness and the threat of an oncoming storm is something that can be physically felt.

Even a callous city-dweller senses the surge of growth in field and tree and bush. For him it may be mingled with the smooth drone of engines in a nearby factory, the odor of rubber or molten iron or the tangy smell of freshly sawed wood. But the senses adapt themselves to this surging of nature despite any interference.

It is older than industry. It is older than war. It is older than man himself. It is the essence of summertime.

Fascinating Ant Mystery

THERE is a fascinating piece in the current New Yorker magazine about the umbrella ants that live in a glass case at the Bronx Zoo. The umbrellas are nice fresh rose petals but the ants do not use them to protect themselves from the sun and weather.

Observation led to the discovery that the ants eat a fungus which grows on roses. They take the petals to a dark chamber in their community and cultivate the fungus, just as people grow mushrooms for their tables.

This is interesting, in its way, but there are other facts about the umbrella ants which give the serious reader pause. Once upon a time Dr. Ditmars, the Bronx zoologist, tried the ants on rose petals gathered from the floors of florists' shops. It didn't work at all.

The ants withdrew into their colony for two days. Whether they held a town meeting, or sulked, or what, even Dr. Ditmars does not say. But they came out on the third day and did a strange thing. They pushed one-eighth of their number, about 1,000 ants, into the water and left them to drown. The supply of fresh roses was quickly restored, and the ants proceeded to behave as formerly—cutting the petals and taking them home for cultivation.

It may be that the purged thousand had confessed—like Russians—to preposterous crimes against the colony. Or perhaps the others thought there wouldn't be enough food for all with the rose petal situation so poor. Or perhaps this was a tribal sacrifice to propitiate some supposedly angry supreme ant god. Science stops short of the answer.

Was It 'Seward's Folly'?

IT HAS been a long time since any intelligent citizen of the United States has thought that the purchase of Alaska from Russia in 1867 for about two cents an acre was a foolish deal. The wealth of Alaska is so great as to make that original $7,200,000 look like nothing at all.

The products and industries of Alaska make a long list. They include gold, silver, copper, iron, tin, oil and coal, salmon canning and fur-farming. The valuable native fur-bearing animals—in addition to the seals—are bear, wolf, muskrat, ermine, mink, sable, lynx, beaver, wolverine, squirrel, hare, marmot, walrus and fox. Aviation has hastened the recent rapid development of Alaska, since it opened many places hitherto inaccessible except by difficult and circuitous routes.

Alaska has been used experimentally for farm resettlement work, but with only partial success.

It is of more interest than usual just now, in view of the plans to build a strategic highway from Puget Sound to Alaska, up through British Columbia and Yukon, by cooperation of the United States and Canada. The American people would, doubtless approve of that, for its military purposes and its general usefulness in developing the territory. If more accessible. Alaska might be twice as valuable.

Speaking of split seconds—the Remington Arms company has a device that can split a second one thousand ways. Don't ask us why.

SLEEPING TABLETS

Bottlenecks On the Open Road

—By JACK STINNETT

Last of a series on Defense and American motoring.

WASHINGTON — Motorists on the United States highways this summer will be bucking the traffic of national defense.

Maybe it will be in some such situation as at Camp Dix, N. J., on a recent week-end when in a single day, 15,000 persons, all in cars or buses, visited the training center.

Maybe, it will be coming in behind comparatively slow-moving army truck convoys on a two-line highway. Perhaps it will be meeting up with armored units on maneuvers. Or it may be simply getting caught in the jams of workers that pour into and out of defense plants at shift time.

The army and the American Automobile association have gone into a huddle over these possibilities and have tried to work out some rules that may save Mike Motorist from feeling like using a lot of blue-flame language.

* * *

A Set of Rules

THE AAA has prepared a set of rules for visiting camps which includes such things as advice that you know the exact locations of the camp, number of the division, regiment, battalion or squadron, the letter designating company, battery or troop, and the branch of service in which the man you are going to visit is training. Be sure that you are going during visiting hours and when the man is free from duty. This will prevent congestion at the camp.

Before you leave, find out if there are good alternate roads. Often, the "back roads" are much faster and more pleasant than the main highways.

According to Capt. Paul W. Thompson of the army engineers, convoys move in groups of from several to 50 trucks. Larger convoys are always broken up into "serials" of 50. On a good open highway, these will move at from 30 to 35 miles an hour and are spaced so that if a motorist has to pass, he may pass one at a time, dropping back into the line. However, the army doesn't try to minimize the danger of this, for although army drivers are praised as the best in the world, convoy trucks are heavy and any accidents are likely to be serious.

Every two hours, convoys halt and pull off the road. During this time, congested traffic caused by them will have a little time to straighten out.

As the very best solution to the motorist's problem, Capt. Thompson suggests consulting local motoring clubs or officials (in almost all instances, they will be informed of the movements of convoys as well as of mechanized units) and try to avoid routes the army is using.

* * *

Must Have Right-Of-Way.

IN CITIES and in some cases on the highways, convoys will be paced by police escorts and in this instance, they should be regarded as ambulances. Cars should pull over and stop until they have passed. And at an intersection, no effort should be made to break through the line.

Even a strict regard for these suggestions isn't going to keep motorists from running into trouble with national defense traffic, and it is no solution at all for the jams that are bound to result around camps on visiting days and around defense plants where roads to housing centers are inadequate.

For these, the motorist will have to learn to avoid them as much as possible and wait until congress and the road builders have done their job on the proposed $287,000,000 defense highway bill.

Listen World!

Why Are We Unfit?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

FORTY per cent of our American draftees are being rejected as unfit. Chew that over. See how nice it tastes.

I listened to an interesting discussion on this subject the other day. It gave many reasons for this tragic and embarrassing situation. Poverty, of course. Unemployment during the depression. Malnourishment. Poor housing. Social indifference to the plight of the poor. All of which was undoubtedly true, as far as it went. But I listened in vain for the one cause which, above all others, has made us Americans unfit for the tough tests of life.

Meaning what? Meaning our nutty notion that Amusement is the Big Idea in Life and should be had, regardless.

We're no longer a nation of patriots. We're a nation of play-boys and play-girls and palvering Pollyannas.

Yes, I know—Jimmy needs vitamins. And Susy needs corrective work on her teeth. And Johnny, aged six, needs a regulated playground instead of his Alley Gang. And the Whole Family needs a well-balanced diet and eight hours rest or else we'll have more 'n' more Dead Enders with vicious impulses, stomach ulcers, broken arches and low blood counts.

But I cannot believe that more playgrounds will solve the problem of more self-expression for Young America. These United States were not built on playgrounds. They were built on hard work, determination . . . and a kick in the teeth for anyone who interrupted our serious destiny. And we'll never regain the urge that made us tick until we realize that we've gone fun-drunk and are acting like a lot of half-baked adolescents.

The draft board is bemoaning our frightful dental record. But the simple truth is that the average family, including Ma and Pa, would pass up a filling for a jook joint any day of the week, even though you gave them the price in hard cash. We're not forty per cent unfit because Something Happened To Us. We're unfit because it's more fun to Cut Up than it is to Keep Regular.

Nor are the Youngsters, alone, to blame for this. Mom and Dad are as keen for the bright lights when the work day's over as the kids. They, too, have been infected with the prevalent notion that One Must Have Fun.

As a consequence, this nation, in its direst peril, is handed a bunch of human weeds. Our teeth are rotten . . . our arches are flat . . . our digestions are bad. As defense material, we're a joke. All because? All because we've thought that life was made for FUN.

* * *

Who's responsible? We're all responsible. This Cut-up Cult isn't restricted to the poor and shiftless. It's flourishing even more flambouyantly with the high 'n' mighty. We've all been sold on the Importance of Play. We're all incapable of sizing up this present peril and cutting out the hijinks.

Those who built America—those who kept it going—didn't have that attitude. They knew what they wanted. And what it took to get it.

More playgrounds for America? I wonder!

Personally, I suspect we need more wood sheds, more hay fields, more manual training jobs. And more kicks-in-the-shin if we don't use them.

Let's Look Around

Phoenix, An Air-Conditioned City

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

PHOENIX, Ariz.—Rising out of desert surroundings, this modern and prosperous capital city of Phoenix owes much of its charm, growth and prestige to irrigation and air conditioning.

Irrigation is not new to this district, as it had been practiced, in a primitive way, by the Indians for at least a thousand years, as a means of turning waste desert land into agricultural production.

With a population of 65,414, Phoenix is by far the largest of Arizona cities and it has grown 17,000 in the past ten years, due primarily to agricultural progress of the surrounding irrigated area, which began to spell success for Phoenix as early at 1911, when the Roosevelt dam, 75 miles to the northeast, was completed.

This was the first of the federal government's irrigation projects and resulted in hundreds of thousands of acres of arid land being made richly productive of grain crops, citrus fruits and all kinds of vegetables.

Since artificial watering has made it possible, Phoenix has developed great pride in its flower gardens, with American Beauty roses growing in profusion and long hedges of red and white oleanders just now at the peak of bloom.

* * *

WHILE the beginning of Phoenix dates back something more than 60 years, growth has been so recent and rapid that it has a width of streets and newness of appearance in the downtown section that gives the impression of a much larger city, possibly accounted for by the spread of area common to these southwestern cities which seem to have unlimited room to expand.

The only antiquated note is noisily sounded by the street cars which still clang along some of the principal streets—but probably not for long.

Blessed with a healthful dry climate and an average of only 16 days a year without sunshine, Phoenix also has some seasons of quite excessive mid-day heat, and air conditioning has proved a godsend in this community. Hotels, public buildings, offices, storerooms, restaurants, homes—practically anywhere you go in Phoenix—you find a comfortable temperature produced by some form of air conditioning. This has been largely a development of the past five years and adds much to the attractiveness of Phoenix as a resort city.

* * *

THE MOTOR TRIP from Grand Canyon to Phoenix is by way of Prescott, a pleasant small city which serves as headquarters for the Prescott national forest and is surrounded by a wealth of Indian ruins of historic interest.

A scenic mountain drive from Prescott to Phoenix reveals what the natives mean when they say, "You'll soon be getting into the heat," for the mile-high altitude of Prescott drops abruptly to desert level and "you're in the heat."

* * *

PURELY PERSONAL NOTE to Mr. and Mrs. Louis Olson: You have a right nice place out North Central avenue, and it's looking especially attractive just now with the oleanders in full bloom,, but the cactus flowers are dropping off. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Emmer, who are looking after things while you are away, asked me to tell you that everything is in good condition and that the irrigation is being looked after ok. The winter grass is dying out and the summer grass is beginning to show through.

(Others may be interested in learning that the Olson winter home in Phoenix is a neat Spanish type bungalow, with a 5-acre orchard or oranges and grape fruit. Mr. and Mrs. Emmer still claim Mansfield as their home and enjoyed a recent visit of Gerald (postoffice clerk) Guthrie, and party, who accomplished a motor trip to the west coast and back home in two days more than two weeks.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

La Guardia, Civil Defense Head, Sits In On U. S. Cabinet Meetings

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—It hasn't been announced, but the Roosevelt cabinet has a new member.

He is Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, director of civil defense. The dynamic little New Yorker attended his first cabinet meeting last Friday and will participate in all future weekly sessions.

A veteran of 37 years in public office, La Guardia is one of the ablest administrators in the country. With the exception of Roosevelt, La Guardia knows more about governmental affairs than any member of the cabinet, also has more drive and capacity. By all odds he is the most experienced and resourceful executive the president has appointed in a long time.

Apparently desirous of taking full advantage of this, the president directed La Guardia to attend the weekly cabinet deliberations, although he does not have titular cabinet status.

Some White House advisers have long advocated that defense heads attend cabinet sessions for a closer integration of policy-making with the actual execution of policy. They have in mind OPM chiefs Knudsen, Hillman, Biggers, Stettinius and Nelson, and Price Regulator Henderson.

Note:—On his first day in office La Guardia floored officials who conferred with him about taking over certain offices for his new agency, by telling them: "Just leave the old furniture that's there. It's good enough. We don't need any new stuff." Such lack of swank is almost unheard of in the defense set-up.

* * *

Newspaper Diplomats.

Working in co-operation with the big press associations, the state department has evolved an excellent plan for bettering press relations in Latin American capitals.

From now on, experienced newspapermen speaking Spanish and Portuguese will be attached to the staffs of American embassies in Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro, Santiago, Chile; and several other capitals.

Among the Latin American experts already selected for this job are William Wieland of the Associated Press, former editor of the Havana Post; and AP's Charlie Nutter, who has seen service throughout most of the globe and now is in New Orleans.

The press association wil lend these and other men to the state department for the duration.

* * *

Merry-Go-Round.

Carl B. Robbins, president of the Commodity Credit corporation, is exiting from this job and from the agriculture department because he cannot get along with Paul Appleby, cantankerous undersecretary of agriculture.

At last a use is being found for this country's huge gold supply. Unable to use it for money, and with more and more gold piling up at Fort Knox, we have finally sent some to the British to be used for buying Arab leaders in Iraq and Arabia. Paper money doesn't talk in those countries, and gold speaks much louder than silver.

Senator Pepper of Florida is having a dispute with his good friend Harold Ickes over "political ticks" and deer in Florida. Pepper wants to kill all the deer on the Seminole Indian reservation because they spread cattle ticks. But Ickes says the deer belong to the Indians, and they have a right to keep them. Also he doubts whether they really do have ticks.

Wall Street Builds Again.

Wall Street insiders apparently never learn and never forget. They can always be depended on to do the wrong thing at the right time.

After years of public distrust and Washington hostility, the rulers of the New York Stock Exchange recently announced the selection of Emil Schram, former mid-west farmer and RFC chairman, as president of the exchange. This was hailed with great fanfare as the dawn of a new day in the 'Street." At long last a man of the people would run the exchange.

Exactly two weeks later, but carefully not publicized, these same insiders elected as chairman and vice-chairman of the Board of Governors, the real masters of the exchange, two leading floor "specialists."

Floor specialists are traders who deal chiefly for themselves against the public. They do not deal directly with the public as the commission houses do. The Securities and Exchange Commission long has charged that specialists are basically inside speculators, interested only in their own profit and executing outside orders only on terms beneficial to themselves.

For Schram, if he intends to be boss in practice as well as in name, this undercover hatcheting by the "floor crowd" bodes ill. But for the SEC it is a break. It can now show congress that far from being reformed, the stock exchange is in the hands of the "same old gang."

* * *

Remarkable Youth Record.

Behind the president's request for another $60,000,000 for the National Youth Administration to train skilled workers for defense industries is a remarkable record of results.

Between last December and May first, 149,904 NYA students secured jobs in factories and shops. This month another 45,000 will step into defense jobs, and NYA officials estimate that by June 30 more than 250,000 trained workers will have been turned out. The new budget is for continuing this program in the next fiscal year.

The NYA has 5,307 shops throughout the country training workers in drafting, plumbing, carpentry, welding, foundry, radio, electrical, aviation, machine tools, automotive and many other vital crafts. At present 153,294 students are receiving shop schooling, while another 110,075 are working on construction projects and 139,758 in clerical and professional projects.

To keep in close touch with the needs of industry, NYA Administrator Aubrey Williams has an advisory council made up of the operating heads of a number of the biggest plants in the country.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Note: Not only do Russel Crouse and Howard Lindsay produce and act in plays—they play a little poker on the side. If either or both call you up some day and invite you over for a bite to eat, Allyn Joslyn's recommendation is that you say "No," then reach for your hat.

Joslyn, who toils for Crouse and Lindsay in "Arsenic and Old Lace," accepted a quiet little invitation from Crouse and Lindsay the other night and after the show went up for the promised "snack." Then Crouse pulled out a deck of cards and suggested a few hands.

"The way I figure out that lunch," Joslyn sadly commented next day, "is that the ham and eggs cost me $300, the blueberry pie cost me $30, and the coffee $6."

LORENZO CAMILIERE thinks war songs should be sung only in camps and that only beautiful music "that brings peace of mind" should be sung at benefit or relief concerts. Camiliere is the founder and leader of the Peoples Chorus of New York. Just before the concert for Greek relief he said, "War songs are too great a strain on the nerves. Many people become wrought up more easily than they imagine. They ought to listen to such beautiful numbers as 'Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes,' 'Keep on Hoping,' and things like that." This is Camiliere's 25th year as leader of the group, which he founded in 1916. It has a membership of more than 600.

I HAVE always thought it would be interesting to know just how many different items are offered for sale in the windows and shops on 6th avenue, which undoubtedly has more classified junk on sale than any district this side of the East Side. But to ascertain such a thing would require a full month's work. I counted 342 items in a single block and gave up the chore. One window alone had 73 gadgets manufactured to heighten the joy of practical jokers—fake cigars, boutonnaires that squirt water in your face, pencils that give you an electric shock when you touch them—things like that.

Some of these windows haven't been dusted in years. The flies that crawl across them leave trails in the "sand." One window was devoted to pamphlets and booklets detailing the marriage life and customs of savages; another had tops that crack like firecrackers when you spin them. . . . For five whole blocks there is absolutely nothing but junk—and more junk . . . fake jewelry, "daring" photographs which aren't very daring.

The proprietors of these shops are almost without exception of foreign extraction, and they speak a broken English. They seem weary and bored. There are always crowds swarming around, but very few purchasers. One wonders how the proprietors can earn a living; yet they have been there for years, and they will be there until the renovation of the street drives them out.

One of the most popular free attractions along Broadway is the animated sign sponsored by a whisky manufacturer. You can get Micky and Minnie Mouse as well as the dancing De Marcos in specialty acts. Standing room only.

A Farmer's Diary

Under the Aspens

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ALONG the west side of the patch we are clearing to plant potatoes, a clump of aspens grows. They doubtless came there since the land was plowed last, years ago. The largest is eight inches through and more than half as tall as the giant oaks and elms in the woods behind it. Against the verdant green of the deeper woods its whitened bark and quivering pale leaves make a beautiful contrast.

A spring in our neighbor's woods has its outlet along this line fence. The soil is marshy and overgrown with elders and blackberry canes. Thirty feet in, an ancient dim furrow shows where the plow was used before. Now scrubby white oaks, maples and tough little elms have dotted the field so that we must use the ax and bush scythe to clear the land for plowing.

We worked—the oldest boy and I—until we were tired and hot. The sun beat down relentlessly, but through the aspens a refreshing breeze came streaming. Here we went to rest.

One joy about hard work on a farm, I think, is the chance to relax on the ground where the grass is soft. A few moments of "stretch beneath the pines" will savor a whole day's toil with something memorable.

We lay along the old rail fence in a delightful, shady spot where a patch of wild geraniums bloomed and the grass was soft and wiry. We noticed that the tallest aspen looked like the parent of the little ones about her feet—we remembered the legend that Calvary's cross was made of aspen wood and that it has quivered ever since—we admired the whitish bark with its blotches of brown. Northern Indians used the sweet inner bark as food in spring.

"The stems of the leaves are so long. Is that why they shake and twinkle so?" asked the boy.

"Perhaps. The seeds are whitish with long white hairs and the wind carries them long distances. They thrive at the edge of swamps, on gravelly banks or where the land has been swept by fire. It prevents the slopes from washing and provides shelter for longer lived seedlings."

SHELTER CAMP IN BERKSHIRES CALLED MODEL

Peace-Time Test Is Conducted at Evacuation Center Built in East.

NEW MILFORD, Conn.—(U.P.)—Although rumblings of war still have been confined to the Old World, the question of evacuation of children from New York—as was done in London—has received consideration here.

One such center, the first in the country, has been constructed and may serve as a model for others should the necessity arise.

This model evacuation camp, located in the foothills of the Berkshire Hills in New Milford, already has undergone a peace-time test, with 96 New York sub-debs portraying the roles of "refugees" from war. The girls are students at the Dalton Schools, Inc., of New York City.

The center was built on top of Buck's Rock by the Children's Foundation, Inc. This is a Connecticut corporation formed last summer by a group of wealthy New York industrialists to extend financial and educational assistance to child refugees. Housing for 125 children and 15 adult supervisors is provided for on the 128-acre tract. Three buildings are for sleeping quaraters and the fourth contains a social hall and class-rooms. All are two stories high. The flat rocks are camouflaged to blend with the terrain. The structures are made from redwood with sheet rock insulation.

The "refugees" sleep in compact quarters with two-tiered bunks set in the walls. They are divided into age groups. As each group completes a month's training at the center it is replaced by another.

An important aspect of the center is the fact that it is planned to permit the continuance of education even during an emergency. Classes will continue no matter how grave outside circumstances may become. Directing the educational program is Miss Helen Parkhurst, head of the Dalton Schools, Inc., and also head of the International Council of Education.

Miss Parkhurst, emphasized the foundation's belief that "education especially during times of emotional stress, is almost as important to a child as clothing, shelter, or food."

The center will not remain idle during the summer. It will be turned over to English evacuees at present living with "foster parents," so that they may spend a summer with children of their own nationality. They will return to these "foster" homes next fall.

The entertaining story of a young composer whose wife tricks him into quitting his job as a bill collector so he can prove his talents as a song writer is depicted in "Margie," featuring Tom Brown and Nan Grey at the Park. Mischa Auer as a South American banana king with an eye for beauty helps smooth out the path. Hilarity is injected into the film by Edward Kennery and Allen Jenkins, two tune-smiths, and Eddie Quillan and Wally Vernon as a couple of song-writers. Parachute troops rain from the sky in "Drums of the Desert," the second film having Africa as its locale.

Wife Got FAT— No Longer Attractive LOST HUSBAND'S LOVE

The above headlines appeared in a New York newspaper in connection with a divorce trial that had attracted wide attention: "She was a beautiful woman," one witness testified, "but she got fat and is not attractive any any more."

Thousands of women are getting fat and losing their appeal just because they do not know what to do. If you are fat, how would you like to lose some of it and at the same time gain in physical charm and attractiveness—more energy—greater activity?

Why not do what thousands of women have done to get rid of pounds of unwanted fat? Take ½ teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts (a famous English formula) in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast and keep it up for thirty days. Cut out pastries and fatty meats and go light on white bread, potatoes, butter and cream. Then weigh yourself and see how many pounds you have lost.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts will last you for 4 weeks and costs but little. Ask any druggist for a bottle of Kruschen, plain or new effervescent—sparkling—pleasant—and start today to lose fat. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back.

Boy Loses Girl Who Proves To Be Fickle

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We had made all our plans to be married when she graduated from college. Her parents approved, and mine were for the match. It would have been impossible to find a happier couple than we were. I let her use my car when she wanted it, and gave her anything she wanted, whether I could afford it or not.

Here's where my problem comes in. Her girl cousin has always been an influencing factor in her life. Married recently, she came to my fiance's home to pay a visit. I don't know what happened, but she was the cause of our breaking up and now my girl is going around with another young man.

DISCOURAGED.

I think your girl must have been pretty fickle and lacking in backbone to permit her cousin to break an engagement at the last moment and substitute another man in the way of a boy friend. You told me all the things you did for this girl of yours. It seems to me, if she intended to break with you, that she should have shown more consideration for your feelings than to drop you at the last moment.

Marriage demands something more steadfast in the way of a life-partner. There are ups and downs in the best of marriages, and the time is likely to come when you may thank the girl cousin for ridding you of a girl so easily influenced.

* * *

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I'm very deeply in love with a married man and care more for him than life itself. He's 45 years old, and I'm 27. He tells me he doesn't love his wife, but adores his two little children, and that, as he has no grounds for divorce, he doesn't see how we can be married.

I don't like a sneaking love affair, but that's the only way it can be. If my family find out about it, they will disown me If I could only go and see his wife and tell her that we love each other and that, as he no longer cares for her, I think she might be reasonable and give him up.

What do you think of this idea?

SUSAN.

It's so natural for a man to make his children an excuse for not divorcing his wife. As a rule, these affairs are disastrous for the girl The husbands usually stand by their wives and say that "the silly girl has just misunderstood" I've had many letters along this same line.

REGULAR MEET

Jeannine club will meet Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Woodrow Mehl, Marion avenue.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, June 1.

Sunday's horoscope favors spiritual, mystical, cultural and emotional affairs, has as well some very disconcerting or difficult situations of a purely private nature to be encountered and wisely dealt with. This is of an unpredictable nature, with surprise, suddenness and baffling aspects of devastating force. Discretion, poise and emotional restraints are recommended Elders may have to be placated or appeased.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which tact, finesse, and shrewd sagacity may produce benefits, while the elements of surprise, subtlety or strange adventure or dubious contacts may beget problems calling for much quick insight, equanimity and self-control to successfully meet peculiar and sudden situations This perhaps in the emotional nature, with elders featuring as the menacing or opposing force.

A child born on this day may have much artistic ability, with social tendencies, yet may have a stubborn, erratic and unfathomable nature, needing much insight and penetration to cast its lines in fortunate places.

For Monday, June 2.

Monday's astrological forecast may be for a rather adverse state of affairs, with the personal proclivities in line for creating all sorts of disturbance, danger, disaster and perhaps stern remorse Quarrels, strife, indulgence and intemperance generally mark the day, with reactions on health and well-being as on physical and financial safety. Risks of any kind, extravagance and excess incite severe penalties, whereas such stimulated energy might be productive.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a highly stimulated mental, physical and emotional excitement, which if permitted to run riot would spell disaster, sorrow, regret and financial as well as social ruin Excess, indulgence, extravagance, strife, and tumult may find disastrous reactions on the health, position and safety. Shun danger and be circumspect in all relations.

A child born on this day may be rash, impetuous, wayward and self-indulgent to its undoing, unless given rigid early discipline in its moral character and also with finances.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Yes, she is most alluring," Olga commented

"And Noel's possessive jealousy would be aroused again," I went on, as she gave a despondent little sigh

"I know you are right," she said, 'but I can see no other way out Can you?"

"Not at this moment," I told her regretfully, 'but I shall try to whittle out a couple of hickory sticks That's what they both need, a good switching"

"I truly hope you can succeed in bringing them to reason" she said but there was doubt in her voice

"I hope so," I echoed, trying to make my own voice sound confident, but without much success

The interview came to an abrupt close upon that note, for Philip Veritzen's knock sounded upon the door, and as I rose to admit him Olga whispered· "We won't mention this to him?" with an interrogative inflection, which I instantly answered

"Not a word," I whispered back And then her husband came through the door I had opened, his face and eyes grave.

"Your premonition was right," he said "A man just checked into that room across the balcony from yours, a man who made inquiries concerning you."

"Sit down and tell us about it," I said.

"You have told her — about your mission here?" he began.

"I am waiting to tell her—and you—about this affair and the reasons for it," I said. "but I wanted to get you together so that I would not waste precious time. But first please let me know what you found out about this man"

'He came into the hotel less than five minutes after you registered," Philip Veritzen began slowly "He asked casually if Mrs Richard Graham had registered, and asked your room number, saying he wished to telephone you.

"But before the operator could connect you" Mr Veritzen went on, "he said he had changed his mind, and that he would see you personally later.

"Then he inquired about rooms, and was so fussy in his inquiries that the clerk finally, at his request, gave him a map of the rooms. He studied it for a few minutes, and then selected the room from which you thought somebody was watching you; thought correctly, as I have no doubt"

As he talked, my thoughts had been circling furiously around the conclusion which he had just reached, but one which I had anticipated from his first words.

Trailed by a Spy.

I had been trailed to the Lansfield, and was even now under the espionage of one of the gang concerned in Marion's disappearance

Yet I was puzzled to know how the man had been able to find out my whereabouts so quickly, since the only man who could possibly come himself, or send another of the gang on such a mission, had been put off my train miles from a station by Dicky, who had left him not even a nickel with which to telephone any message

The explanation flashed upon me with terrifying significance. The ramifications of this gang must be far-reaching enough to have enabled the young gangster who had telephoned Carolyn to get word to comrades in New York, before he boarded my train, that the Lansfield was their next point of contact, if they did not hear from him that his mission had succeeded.

I felt suddenly breathless, as if I had been successfully running away from one danger, and suddenly found myself confronted by another. But I managed a decent degree of composure as I put the query which would naturally follow Philip Veritzen's revelation

"Is he still in his room?" I asked

'The Authority on Authorities'

SUDDENLY IT CLEARS UP

On some deals, the distribution of the missing hands, and the location of certain honors remain in doubt, even to the finest expert, as a number of tricks pass in review. Then all at once something occurs on some one trick which makes all the rest crystal clear to him, and the rest of the way he has nothing to do but "play chess" —consider that he knows the exact situation and has no problem but the simple one of what to do about clearly visible and known factors.

In the West was one of the super-masters of the game, Lee Hazen, New York attorney, who was busily engaged in winning the national individual masters' championship, and another of that top class was in the East, Waldemar von Zedtwitz. The defense they put up against still another man of their own rating, Merwin D. Maier of the "Four Aces," earned them a top score on this hand, which cannot produce a game for anybody

When Mr. von Zedtwitz led the diamond 4. Mr Maier played small from dummy the 10 winning Next he sent the heart 10 through to the J, and Mr. Hazen returned the diamond 8, the K winning and the 5 then knocking out the A Next Mr. Maier led the club 3 to the 8, 9 and 10. That 8-spot told Mr. Hazen the whole story. He knew it would not have been played if Mr. von Zedtwitz had held three, hence he had left only the K, which would drop to the A. Diamonds were already revealed as being only four, and the hearts could not be five, or they would have been led Hence East had exactly three spades, which had to include the A to have produced a bid.

So Mr. Hazen then led back the Spade 4, the declarer letting East's J win. Mr. Von Zedtwitz cashed the good diamond 9 and laid down his club K to the A. Then the club J lost to the Q, and the heart 2 was let to North's A. The club 7 was now raked in by North, but he had a heart and spade left and so had to lose the last two tricks to the East honors, being set two tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem.

The Secret of the Marshbanks + + +

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER I

"That's the child—that's Cherry," Sister Seraphine said in her serene voice.

Her hands were crossed and hidden within her wide sleeves, but a motion of her caped and coifed head indicated a certain girl among the milling masses, and the man who was her companion looked at the girl keenly.

The tableaux and the play was over, but many of the girls still wore their make-up and a theatrical excitement possessed the hot, crowded hall. It was not a large hall; just now it was filled with spectators, nuns and performers mixed indiscriminately.

Bright lights flooded auditorium and stage; groups formed and reformed. The man watched the girl he had identified for a few minutes and thought that she was a vital young creature, anyway; she was not a bad-looking young creature, anyway; she seemed popular enough, anyway. Obviously she was the center of everything that went on.

As the daughter of an Indian chief she had taken the leading part in the play that had concluded the program, and had appeared also in more than one of the tableaux that preceded it. Judson Marshbanks saw her questioned, kissed and congratulated; saw her drop her proudly feathered head more than once in a deprecating fashion, as if she were embarrassed by praise.

After some fifteen minutes of this post-performance bedlam when some of the audience were already drifting away a nun drew her quietly aside. The girl's laughing expression changed, as she glanced in his direction. She joined him immediately.

"Cherry, this is Judge Marshbanks," said Sister Seraphine, and the judge watched her dark eyes brighten suddenly, and felt the touch of her warm, young, quickly extended hand.

All she said was a somewhat shy how-do-you-do, but her look added what she did not say: "I know your name! I know something about you."

'Well, so you led the pioneers out of danger?" Judson Marshbanks asked amiably. Color showed under her Indian brown and he thought with satisfaction that she was a handsome, glowing sort of girl who ought not to have too much trouble getting along. Tall, with fine eyes and a nice smile on painted lips, and with a lithe young body to which the brown-fringed cloth and beads and feathers of her costume were infinitely becoming.

"It was a silly sort of play," the girl said quickly. He remembered that she had written it, and smiled.

"Come over here and sit down, Cherry; I want to talk to you a minute," he said. "I'll not keep you long. I'm joining a friend who is flying his plane down to San Francisco tonight."

* * *

Cherry looked dazed with excitement and surprise. A man coming to see her, who had not averaged a caller a year in all her twenty years, and coming just now, when she was still flushed and breathless from the evening's thrills, created a situation that silenced her. She sat down and looked at her companion expectantly and could not speak.

"I thought it was a very good play," said the judge. "I understand that you wrote it? It was sort of allegory — a pageant wasn't it?"

"Well, they all have to be pageants, because of having to get all the girls in," Cherry answered in a shy voice. But her dark blue eyes were not shy, and they shone with curiosity and friendliness and eagerness at her companion. Fred's eyes, he thought. How like him she was."

"Oh, you have to get all the girls in?" he asked aloud.

"Oh, yes. Last Halloween we had only fifteen girls, so that wasn't so hard. I could have used more. But now we have twenty-four girls from the house in Victor street that burned down."

"I see. And do you always write the plays?"

"Well, usually. Yes, I guess always."

"And who wrote the song?"

"That Madeleine sang? Didn't she sing that beautifully? Sister Claude," Cherry went on, suddenly warming to confidence, "went to opera once. You know, real opera."

"I didn't think Sisters did."

"Oh, but this was before she entered," the girl reassured him. And for the first time he heard her resonant joyous laugh.

"You wrote the words to the song, too?"

"Oh, well, yes," Cherry said carelessly. "And she said—Sister Claude did, that Madeleine sang like the prima donna—she said so, really."

"You acted the leading part, too," the man said.

"Yes, I had to! Miriam Foster was twenty and she had to go home. We thought she'd be here until at least Christmas, but her mother sent for her. So I took her part."

"Some of the girls here have mothers then, Cherry?" His tone had changed. It had dropped to a personal note of something like pity and tenderness, and he saw her flush brightly again as she faced him, realizing perhaps with a little fear that they reached their own affairs now.

"Yes; some have," she said almost inaudibly.

"And you know that you lost yours when you were very small, my dear?"

"Seven," she said unsteadily. "I remember her, and living in the country."

"You came here at seven. Thirteen years! But they haven't been unhappy years, have they, Cherry?"

"No. They've been — heavenly years!" she said loyally, after a moment. "But, of course — of course—I've wanted someone of my own—someone . . ."

* * *

"Of course you have, of course you have," he said a little thickly. It was an immense relief to him to see that she really had self-control, that she could straighten up, and wipe her eyes and blow her nose on the handkerchief that he offered her, and even laugh a little to see the brown paint and rouge that streaked it.

"I'm very sorry," she said composedly in the voice and manner of much older woman. "I don't cry much. I don't know what started me. We've been decorating and rehearsing until I suppose I'm tired. But of course, they haven't been unhappy years," she said sensibly. "I've loved the Sisters, and they've all liked me—at least I think they have . . ."

Sister Seraphine said that you were the most influential girl in the school," the man put in.

"Oh, that couldn't have been Sister Seraphine; she never praises anyone," Cherry smiled, with wet eyes.

"It was, though. She said they would be sorry to lose you. Sorrier than over losing almost any other girl."

"Did she say that?" Cherry had pushed off her headdress now and he saw that her hair was a warm tawny mixture of tan and brown. The significance of his last phrase came to her suddenly. "Sorry to lose me?" she repeated, the color leaving her face. "You mean I'm going out?"

"You're twenty, aren't you? Isn't that the age when girls are launched from Saint Dorothea's?"

"Yes, but—yes, but—" she whispered, and stopped.

"Don't you want to? Don't you want a look at something outside these four walls?" the judge questioned.

"Why, yes; the others have. But I never thought of it as my turn," the girl said. "And I have been out, you know," she reminded him. "In the city, I mean. I taught the last three terms at the kindergarten. We have—the Sisters have a free kindergarten in the poorest part of the city, and if you take the kindergarten course you practice there. And then we go every summer to the summer place. We have a boat there, and woodcraft and wienie roasts. People sort of pity us because the buildings are so old, and we haven't much garden since they built the novitiate," she went on, animatedly, "but we're all so busy that we don't mind a little soot!"

Her own face was streaked with soot as she spoke, her eyebrows had melted and her cheeks were pale. But she was giving no thought, he percieved, to her appearance; she was absorbed in the stunning news of the approaching change in her life.

"Would it be to go to San Francisco?" she asked eagerly, like a child.

"I don't suppose you would rather make it somewhere else?" he asked in return. "What I had to suggest was a secretarial position in San Francisco."

"A secretarial position?" she asked, flustered. "I don't think I could take a position. That is except in a kindergarten. I can typewrite, and I'm getting better at stenography, and I speak a little French and some Spanish. We have two sisters here from Belgium and two from Madrid. But—would that be enough?"

"Plenty, at first. Later, if you wanted to study anything specifically," the judge said, "anything like—well, library work or nursing or going on with kindergarten work, we could find out what the requirements are, and I don't think there'd be any trouble."

"But—" Her pale, tear-streaked and paint-streaked face reddened suddenly. "But have I any money?" she asked hesitatingly. And then, with a little trembling return to emotion, "You see, I don't know much about myself. I know my mother's dead, and I suppose my father. And some of the girls here have told me about themselves, and I've thought—I've suspected, that that was true of me, too—I mean that perhaps I haven't any right to my father's name. Perhaps you could tell me that?"

Her voice faltered, but she held it as firm as she could, and looked straight into his eyes.

"I can't tell you very much, Cherry," said the judge, with a straightforwardness as simple as her own, and with a great ache at his heart. I know that we had in our family for many years a fine housekeeper named Emma. She was a trained nurse, took care of my brother and me, when we were boys, and afterward of my father. She was a silent creature, but very capable and reliable. Some years ago—well, perhaps almost twenty—she gave up her job to live with a Mrs. Rawlings who was ill."

"Emma!" said Cherry with a brightening face. "I remember her. She took care of my mother and me."

"Yes; that same Emma. After your mother's death quite a sum of money was left for you. Emma came to me about it. You were to be sent here, she said. Well, you were sent here! Your own mother chose the place."

"She would know about my mother—Emma," the girl said, "she could tell me."

"She mightn't tell you. She has another position now, housekeeper to a very lovely old lady. I don't see Emma often. But during these thirteen years, when you've been ill—you were ill once, weren't you?" the judge broke off to say, speaking comfortably, as if the subject presented no difficulties, and smiling with the question.

"I had scarlet fever, and then I broke my leg falling out of a tree," Cherry supplied.

"Well, about things like that she would consult me. Your mother made me your joint guardian with Emma."

"Guarandian for what?" the girl asked quickly.

"A sum of money for all your expenses, for your education."

"But Emma," the girl said quickly and proudly, "wasn't paying that. She was—she was only my mother's nurse!"

"No; it had been left with her for you, and she put it into my hands. Through Emma that account had taken care of you all these years. And even now I know there is enough left to help you into any profession you choose."

Cherry considered this, bright-eyed and thoughtful.

"Emma got in touch with me ten days ago," the man said, "to remind me that you would be twenty this week. She was the one to get you this position."

"I never saw her."

"Emma never said anything of my father?"

"I know that he is dead."

"I think," Cherry said, "I've always thought that I was an unwanted baby, and that I caused my mother great trouble, and that Emma was a friend who come to stand by her at the end."

"Why mightn't you think that your mother had been widowed, and was as happy in having you as any other mother?"

"Because," the girl offered slowly and doubtfully, "it wasn't that way. I was only seven, but I knew that something was wrong. Nothing was left for me, no pictures of anyone, no letters or names. This school, you know, isn't like an ordinary school. We know we aren't like other girls. Everyone here has some strange history—no letters, no going home for holidays, no presents and surprises. They tell us we must make our own happiness when we go out into life, must try to be as busy and content and useful as we can. I've never been to any other school," she finished. "But I know they're not like this. We girls—of course we talk to one another, we try to work it out. And I wish I knew—I wish I knew something about myself!"

"No; this isn't a regular school," he conceded. "But according to Emma it was the best thing to do. And you seem to have flourished," he added with a smile. "You've gone along here more as if it were a home . . ."

"With a capital letter!" she put in as he paused.

"A place where girls are protected and safe, and well fed . . ." He raised questioning eyes. "Well fed?" he asked.

"Not so—oh, yes, all right," she conceded, not interested. An important jerk of her head took him back to the point where he had interrupted himself.

"And are taught good professions," he finished

"Dressmaking, beauty parlor work, stenography, bookkeeping," she supplied. "But, she added, "those aren't what they teach girls in other schools. But that's all right, that's all right!" Cherry said, in a tone that apologized for her unreason. 'I didn't mean—really I didn't—to complain about it. It's only that it gives you—it gives you such a strange feeling not to know anything about yourself. But that won't keep me from trying terribly hard to make good. You said something about a position? What am I to do?"

"You are not to do anything until you find just what you want to do," he said, his graying hair and his fifty years making it possible for him to use a father's kindly tone. "But for the time being it is a secretarial position with the same old lady—a very rich old woman named Mrs. Porter—Mrs. Porteous Porter, for whom Emma works. Answering the telephone, and correspondence, and reading—that sort of thing."

"Oho, that?" the girl said with a brightening face. "That I think I could do!"

"I'm sure you could. And you would be paid seventy-five dollars a month."

"Seventy-five dollars a month! Oh, she is kind!"

* * *

He thought, and was comforted by the thought, that she was very young, and that whatever mood of discouragement or depression was awaiting her it would not be a lasting mood. He saw her eyes quicken as she added, "When—would I go?"

"This is—let's see, the third," he said. "Suppose you come down on Monday? Monday's a good day to start. You take a train at half past five in the afternoon, and at seven the next night someone will meet you at the Oakland Mole."

"Sunday wouldn't do?" she asked.

"Why not?"

"I was thinking, when you said Oakland, that two Sisters are going down to the Oakland house on Sunday! we're having a jubilee for them Sunday afternoon; they would take me."

"That would be an excellent arrangement. You come first to my house, you understand, and we can go over and see Emma when you've some clothes and have had time to look about a little. I must see Mother Superior before I go and make the arrangements for you."

And then they were walking back toward the convent's main building, through wide, orderly, dimly lighted corridors.

"I must tell you about my family, Cherry," the man said. "My mother lives with us—Mrs. Clay Judson Marshbanks; she sounds a little formidable and she is a little formidable! Then there's my pretty wife—I lost my first wife," he interrupted himself to explain, "and Fran is almost young enough to be my daughter. I've a son Greg—he's twenty-four, off at college in the east, and also with us is my brother's daughter, Amy. Amy's mother died when she was a litle girl; her father was killed in an accident a few years after that, and my mother has had her since—making her bow in society now and quite grown up.

"Of course," the judge went on comfortably, "you'll not be long with us, but Mrs. Porter's isn't far away, and I hope if anything goes wrong, you'll feel that you have a right to run around the corner and tell me about it. And some night when my mother has an extra seat at the opera—we have a beautiful memorial opera house, you know."

"Oh, not the opera!" Cherry gasped.

"We'll hope so. We'll hope that you'll be very happy. And if it's rather rough going at first—Emma isn't the sunniest companion for a girl . . ."

"Oh. But she'll take care of me, and I won't feel so strange," Cherry assured him eagerly.

"I think you're going to solve your own problems very well," he approved.

Kidneys Were Sluggish, Needing a Mild Diuretic Action; Constipation Also a Bother. Highly Praises Vendol and Recommends It to Others.

"The muscles of my back felt so stiff and sore that when I bent over it felt like it would break, and every move caused intense suffering. So, it is easy to see why I praise Vendol, when you read all I have to say below," says Mr. C. C. French of Galion, Ohio.

"When I allow myself to be constipated I pay the price by having symptoms of stiff, aching muscles in my arms, neck, across my back, and down through my legs, and many days seems I just can't roll out of bed and begin the day's work, all due to constipation.

"Vendol has done worlds of good for me and I wouldn't take anything for it. It gives the temporary relief from constipation I need so badly and acts as a mild diuretic to my kidneys, and with such help as this I do not suffer from the symptoms of muscular backache, upset stomach, dizziness, headaches, and other distress due to constipation. I can strongly recommend Vendol to everyone who suffers like I did."

MR. C. C. FRENCH

Vendol is the medicine so popular all over this state for many years and has been used by hundreds of responsible people who depend upon it when they are constipated, need a mild diuretic for their kidneys, or a carminative for the stomach, and the many symptoms due to these troubles. Vendol is pleasant to take, prompt and efficient in action. Give it a chance to help you.

All leading druggists sell Vendol, and it is featured and recommended here by Central Drug Store, corner Main and Fourth streets.—(Adv.)

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

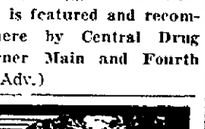
If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

MEMORIAL DAY . . . 1941



Tomorrow, America pauses to pay tribute to her soldier dead.

And with that tribute, may every American find re-dedication to the great principles upon which this nation was founded. Those principles are needed today, more than ever before.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

You Can't Print That.

(A compendium of tales that can't be told with names, because they're too true to print. If you find in them any resemblance to actual persons, living or dead—you've probably guessed right!)

* * *

LORETTA was a girl who hit the "big time" early. At 16 she was a famous show girl, tall, blond, svelte, incredibly beautiful.

Dorothy Kilgallen

At the age when other girls worry over high school math and library books, her chief problems revolved around the ardent attention of the big shots of Broadway—band leaders, racket guys, and plain money men from the Wall Street that used to be.

She had come from a home of dire poverty in the far reaches of the Bronx, where her father was a tenement janitor; and because all the nice things girls want had been denied her in childhood she made up her mind to get them with her beauty.

The racket guys, the musicians, and the big name comics who pursued her were all right as far as they went, but she determined to pick herself a really solid money man. And at 17 she found him—a man four times her age, who owned one of the big fortunes of the country. He had been married for 50 years—but he fell madly in love with her. Let's call him Bradford.

The presents Bradford showered on Loretta would have made a maharajah's bride livid with envy. Custom built cars, diamonds the size of pigeon eggs, emeralds even bigger. For Loretta, it was like a dream.

But of course she didn't love him.

Once in a while he'd catch her sneaking out with some young man and they'd quarrel—and she'd sell him back his passionate love letters. Once she got $25,000 for a batch.

Before her 20th birthday she had gone through a quarter of a million dollars. She tossed money around like confetti; kept her family in grand style and gave crisp bills to any pal with a hard-luck story.

And still the money poured in, faster and faster as she learned little ways to separate it from the old gent. One year she lost $100,000 at the race track.

But as she grew into her 20's she was the unhappiest girl in town. She was surfeited with jewels and glamor; what she wanted now was a little apartment with gingham curtains at the kitchen windows and someone her own age to love. And all at once, she found the lad she thought was right for her, a fellow named Mark.

She told Bradford it was all over, and she married young Mark. She hadn't saved any cash, but she had a fortune in jewelry and a $5,000 car.

Well, in six months Mark had cleaned her out—bag and baggage, lock, stock and barrel. He asked her to pawn her jewels for money to put into "his business," and she did—but his business was gambling, and he lost.

Finally he left her. And the day he left her she didn't own even an extra pair of stockings.

Several weeks ago, Loretta met another young man, Sandy. They were to be married next month. But somehow, as she made her plans, she realized her heart wasn't in it. The urge to live wasn't in her any more. She had lived life too fast and had seen too much of it; she didn't want to see any more.

That's why those who knew her weren't too surprised the other day, when, as so often happens with girls who choose the soft life, she ended it the hard way—a suicide.

But you can't print that. Girls of 16 who read stories like that never believe it could happen to them—nothing except the first part. They think, "I'll be smart. I wouldn't wind up that way." But they always do.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Tom Keene is missing a bet, in this possibly balmy opinion, in not capitalizing on his New York background as he hits the trail in Prescott, Ariz., for another "western" series.

We were talking about it just before Tom left, all done up in suede jacket, sombrero, scarf tie, tight pants and boots, for the old-time haunt of the movie shoot-'em-ups, where they used to chase through the scenery before Hollywood's hills became standard background.

Tom, who was George Duryea of the stage and screen before a producer discovered he looked good on a horse, is counting on two things to put his series over; His confidence that the singing cowboy is fading before straight action stuff, and the rediscovered scenery.

He doesn't want, even for the novelty of it, to put himself forward as a "cowboy from Brooklyn" or a "metropolitan buckaroo."

"The kids,' he whispers, "wouldn't stand for it."

But if a city slicker can do the cowboy stuff, says I, he's got the kids—and a good laugh on the competition besides. As good a laugh as old two-gun Bill Hart who hailed from Newburgh, N. Y., and yet ruled the movie western roost for years.

Tom Keene would rather let it be known that he ran away from the eastern baliwick when he was 10, and knocked around Texas ranches in his youth. Maybe he's right.

But only four of the current name cowboys can lay claim to western birth, whatever their subsequent cowboy training may have been. Gene Autry, Ken Maynard, Tex Ritter are from Texas, and Roy Rogers is from Wyoming.

And the "kids" don't seem to mind.

ANALYZE PLAN FOR NEW OHIO DISTRICTING

Governor's Aides Make Study of Geographical Division For State Assembly.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Aides of Governor Bricker today made a careful analysis of a plan to revise the geographical representation in the Ohio legislature for the next 10 years.

They worked at the instruction of the governor who yesterday refused to be "rushed" into approval of the plan when it was presented to him by Secretary of State John Sweeney, and State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, both Democrats.

Bricker, a Republican, has only a minority vote on the commission provided by the state constitution to redistrict representation in the state senate and reapportion it in the house every 10 years immediately following the decennial federal census.

The Democratic members attempted to get approval of the plan immediately but Bricker vigorously declined to be "crowded" after his executive secretary, Emory Glandor, discovered an apparent error in the plan.

"You can take any action you see fit," Bricker told the other two members of the committee, "but I want to say to you quite frankly that the plan will not be certified until it has been checked."

Sweeney was insistent that the plan, drawn up by George M. Neffner, chief statistician in the secretary of state's office and former Republican secretary of state, be approved immediately. He contended that constitutional provisions required its approval before June 1, six months before the next election in Ohio.

Sweeney and Ferguson, who have looked over the plan for some time, admit that its adoption will enable the Democrats to maintain a strong hold on the senate for the next decade unless there is a major upheaval in state or national politics.

In addition, the changing of the districts will virtually elliminate veteran Frank E. Whittemore, R., Summit, senate majority leader, from further terms in the upper chamber.

Senators O. W. Whitney, R., Delaware, and Walter G. Nickles, R., Tuscarawas, both memberds of the present legislature will be forced to oppose each other. Senators Tom Jones, R., Meigs, George Hunter, R., Lawrence and H. T. Phillips, R., Athens, will all be thrown into the same district.

On the other hand with the exception of the Youngstown area, Democrats will strengthen their positions.

FOREIGN POLICY GIVEN SUPPORT

Willkie, Smith, Davis, Cox OK Roosevelt Statements In Fireside Chat.

NEW YORK— (U.P.) —Four former presidential nominees—Wendell L. Willkie, Alfred E. Smith, John W. Davis, and James M. Cox—were on record today in support of President Roosevelt's foreign policy as reflected in his Tuesday night fireside chat.

Willkie, in a public statement, declared the United States must not merely match totalitarian powers plane for plane and tank for tank, but outdo them.

Smith, Cox and Davis, all former Democratic presidential nominees, made a joint radio appeal for national unity under sponsorship of the committee to defend America by aiding the Allies. Both Smith and Cox voiced emphatic denials that President Roosevelt was seeking to create conditions which would lead this country into war.

Cox, who spoke from Dayton, described Nazism as the most menacing movement man has ever known.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.— (U.P.) — Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., linked President Roosevelt with American "war makers" at an America first committee rally last night.

EXPECT ONLY FIFTEEN 'BOYS IN BLUE' AT DIAMOND JUBILEE

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — As devastating 20th-century war machines roar over Europe, little Miss Lida S. Lucas is busy arranging for the diamond jubilee encampment of Ohio's Grand Army of the Republic—the "Boys In Blue" who fought their war on a man-to-man, cold steel basis.

Miss Lucas, for 22 years Ohio department secretary of the G. A. R., remarked rather wistfully today:

"Possibly fifteen members will attend the Columbus encampment. Only eighteen reported last year. Remember, all are 90 years of age or older."

The department boasted a membership of 49,011 in 1890, but it had faded to 44 as of last Dec. 31. An even dozen veterans responded to final "taps" during 1940.

Tomorrow — Memorial day — Ohio communities where the few surviving "Boys In Blue" reside will pay them special tribute at patriotic ceremonies.

Gov. John W. Bricker is scheduled to address the Ohio encampment, to be held June 22-26. Affiliated groups to convene at the same time include the Woman's Relief Corps, Ladies of the Grand Army, Daughters of Union Veterans, Sons of Union Veterans and the latter's auxiliary.

Columbus also will be host to the 75th national G. A. R. encampment Sept. 14-19, for the first time in 22 years.

Admiralty Announces Survivors of Bismarck Picked Up.

LONDON—(AP)—More than 100 officers and men of the German battleship Bismarck were picked up after she was sunk Tuesday morning, and a subsequent attack by German aircraft then sank the British destroyer Mashona, the admiralty announced today.

One officer and 45 men are missing from the Mashona, the admiralty said.

SECCAIUM PARK OPENS SEASON

Amusement Center to Start Activities Tomorrow.

Seccaium park near Bucyrus will inaugurate a new season Memorial day with free dancing in the afternoon and a free fireworks display in the evening.

Ray Christman and his band will be in the shell for the dance Friday night and will also play for dancing Saturday and Sunday nights.

The park is featuring many new improvements this season and is now equipped with more than 20 riding devices. An "octopus" and ferris wheel have been added to the rides this year.

Laff-a-Day

"Keep it up, pop, you're doing great!"

The soldier monument at the west side of Central park will have a new coat of bronze paint for Memorial day, and this time city parks officials made sure that the Union soldier would have the proper attire. Last year it was deep blue, and the color brought complaints from a number of sources. Frank Burton, parks superintendent, wrote to the war department for information on what the well-dressed Civil war soldier is wearing and was told that bronze is the proper shade.

Youthful subscribers of Mansfield Public library have their imagination captured by the brilliantly colored four-foot bull's-eye target in the children's room. Made by Mrs. Lois Pennell, Newman branch librarian, the target will be used to indicate the progress made by third to ninth grade students who enroll in the Robin Hood club, children's summer reading course. As the students submit written reports on the books they have read, an arrow moves closer to the gold bull's-eye.

W. T. Houston, assistant postmaster, walked into the garden at his home, 456 West Park avenue, the other day with his dog Trixie and learned that his garden was the home of a litter of six rabbits. Trixie discovered the nest between two plants, but because the nest was made of fur and straw refused to nose through the nest and unearth the new children. The little rabbits now make occasional forays through the garden. Trixie has learned that the little fellows are forbidden property and does not try to molest them, Houston said.

City street workers aiding WPA employes running the new Park avenue east-Wayne street water line under Rocky Fork creek solved an unusual engineering problem in an unusual way. Joining two sections of pipe together, the workers built a wooden cradle, lashed the pipe to it, and lowered it to the bottom of the creek. Ditches dug on each side brought the line down to the point needed to connect with the regular line.

STUDY BUDGETS

City Departments Told to Prepare Fund Estimates.

Preliminary steps in the preparation of Mansfield's 1942 budget were taken today when Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton requested all city departments to submit estimates for their costs by Wednesday.

Crafton said that the administration would assemble the estimates and present the prepared budget to council at its July meeting. Following a public hearing, council must approve the budget before July 15.

The propsed budget must be given to the county auditor by July 22. He in turn will assemble the estimates of the various governing groups in the county and present it to the budget commission by Sept. 1. From the estimates, the commission will plan the tax rate for 1942.

ARMY OFFICIALS SEE UNLIMITED DUTY CERTAIN

Request To Keep 291,000 Men In Service Anticipated By Congress.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Indefinite military duty for the national guard was considered a virtual certainty by army officials today because of the unlimited national emergency proclaimed by President Roosevelt.

An early request to congress for authority to retain the 291,000 guardsmen in service beyond the current single year of training was accordingly anticipated, although no final decision has been disclosed on the question.

In the light of the threat to American security pictured by the chief executive, an informed official suggested it would be "hardly logical" to demobilize 18 full divisions of trained troops, representing more than half the number of such major units under arms in all the expanding land forces.

Both Secretary Stimson and General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, have forecast that the decision would be made probably next month and would be based on the general defense outlook at that time.

Officials were inclined to doubt that the president, even under an unlimited emergency, had the power to extend the guard's one-year training period without congressional action. They cited the 1920 national defense act which provides that federal service for the national guard should not exceed 15 days a year except in the event of a national emergency "declared by congress." It was likewise pointed out that special legislation to authorize the current one year's field training was enacted at Mr. Roosevelt's request.

The first of the national guard divisions were mobilized last September 16 and without extending the period of service these would be demobilized less than four months hence.

COLUMBUS — Nearly 10,000 members of the 37th division, Ohio national guard, went to Camp Shelby, Miss., last October under the command of Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler.

Beichtler recently expressed the belief that the contemplated year of training for the Ohioans might be extended for a longer period.

COLUMBUS—Adjt. Gen. W. S. Bird scheduled conferences today with his regimental commanders to discuss recruiting of the new Ohio state guard.

After locations have been determined, Bird said officers would be named and recruiting started immediately.

Tentative plans are for Richmond to head the first regiment to be stationed at Cincinnati, Christy the second at Columbus and Woolf the third at Akron.

Murder, Suicide Traced to Son's Enlistment Wish

PORTSMOUTH — (INS) — The murder and suicide of a Middleport couple and the serious wounding of an 18-year-old son was traced indirectly by authorities today to the youth's expressed desire to join the navy.

Harry Hill, 50-year-old relief client and father of six children, died of a self-inflicted shotgun blast after killing his wife, Garnett, 42, and critically wounding his son, Carl.

As Sheriff George R. Bearhs reconstructed the tragedy, Carl, who had been employed on an NYA project, was shot by his father in a violent argument, and crawled to a neighbor's home to report the incident.

When Bearhs went to the Hill home, the father, who had been jobless since 1933, appeared on the front porch with a shotgun and ordered the officer from the yard. Bearhs left to summon deputies and highway patrolmen, and returned to find the house barricaded.

Bearhs entered the house to find Mrs. Hill dead, but Hill was still living. He and Carl were rushed to a Gallipolis hospital, where Hill died. Carl was given a chance to recover.

The maritime commission announced yesterday that the 26,482-ton vessel was being taken over as an auxiliary for the navy.

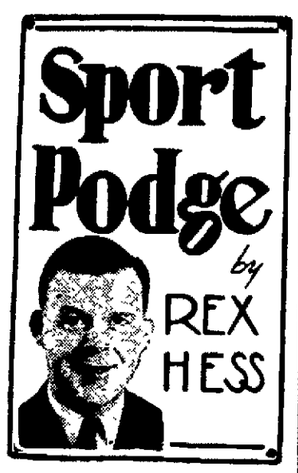
Honeyboy Jones Hits Comeback Trail In Fight Tonight

Sport Podge by Rex Hess



The Pan-Hells got the low-down on the Ohio State football situation last night at their monthly dinner at the Mansfield-Leland from Paul Bixler, assistant coach in charge of ends and wingbacks, and since the present Ohio State football situation is Coach Paul Brown and his coaching methods, they got the low-down on Paul Brown.

And the low-down they got made them high up on Brown, even as you might suspect if you've followed Brown and his coaching career at Massillon high school.

And they came away from the meeting with a mighty high regard for the clean-cut, plain spoken, direct from the shoulder Paul Bixler, former Mt. Union all-Ohio back who came to State from an assistant coaching job at Colgate.

* * *

Bixler told them that the chief aim of the Ohio coaching staff right now is to build morale among the Buckeye squad, to let the boys know that the best football players will compose the Ohio State team, and that to become the best football players they must keep in strict training.

"I'm confident," he said, "that the boys on our squad in spring practice did keep strict training. In six weeks of practice, with the squad assembled promptly at 4:15 in uniform, not one boy on the entire squad missed one day of practice.

* * *

"One student told me about a football player in his fraternity who always had smoked before in football season and out, who couldn't be forced to smoke a cigaret this spring, because he believed Paul Brown meant what he said and he 'didn't want to be the horrible example of being the first to be kicked off the squad for not training.'

* * *

Bixler said that as far as fraternity politics is concerned, both the boys and the fraternities have been told that no matter who intercedes for the boys, only the best football players will play.

"It may be that we'll have four or five from one fraternity on our first team," he said, "but you may be sure that they'll be on the team because they are the best players we've got at their positions and for no other reasons.

"I believe we have the confidence of the boys in that respect," he declared. "You can only kid college players once. After that they've got your number.

* * *

"If you'd ask our entire squad of 45 to pick a first team backfield I believe every one would have Johnny Hallabrin of Mansfield on the team, especially after that spring game we had to close the practice season.

"But where we're going to play him we don't know yet. He's a good blocking back, he's the best man we have for picking up those two or three yards through the line when they're needed, he's the surest punt receiver we've got and he'd be sure to start in the right direction after he caught it. And on defense he played a whale of a game at halfback in that spring game, and he's also a great line backer-upper.

* * *

"If he keeps in training this summer, and I know he will, and unless he gets banged up, I'm sure you'll see Johnny Hallabrin in that Ohio State backfield next fall."

* * *

Bixler said after the session that he'd enjoyed this meeting more than any he'd spoken at this spring. "At most meetings we have to be more or less careful of what we say," he pointed out, "but here I could say what I wanted to."

He'd been assured, you see, that he was among friends. So the best parts of his informal talk, and of the answers to questions after the talk, will have to be omitted from this column.

Because he was among friends.

ONTARIO BOOKED

Battles Akron Boy In Armory Bout

One-Time Winner Over Billy Conn Heads Professional Mitt Show

Tonight's the night for the big fight at the armory when Honeyboy Jones and Beauford Glover come home to the ring where they first won fame, and Paul Carbetta gives up his simon pure standing and puts the pro label on his famous left hook.

The whole town's talking about the Honeyboy Jones comeback, at least that part of the town interested in fisticuffing, and according to Sam Saprano a large part of the town bought tickets in advance.

* * *

"It looks like I'll have to get more tickets printed," Sam declared yesterday afternoon. "And I really mean that. The ducats are going like hot cakes, but we'll have plenty of room and plenty of seats for all the crowd that shows up."

* * *

Honeyboy's record of five fights with Light-heavyweight Champion Billy Conn is the chief cause of the Mansfield interest in Jones' return to the home-town ring.

He must have been good, the fans argue, to go with Conn that often. They don't rematch fights unless the original scrap is good enough to demand a rematch.

At the time of the Conn-Jones ring feud both boys were battling for the favor of Pittsburgh fans, and the fact that they had to battle through five bouts to settle the argument indicates that Pittsburghers were being treated to some hot warfare inside that squared circle.

Jones cheerfully admits that the final score stood 4 to 1 in favor of Conn, "But," says Honeyboy, "I really gave it to him in that one, a 12-round scrap. I had him down for nine in the 11th and why I didn't finish him, I don't know.

* * *

"And Conn will tell you today that most of the ring scars he's carrying now I gave him. Conn's that kind of a boy. He'll tell the truth."

* * *

Jones battles Frankie Williams, Akron university puncher, in the top ten-round bout of tonight's card. Inactive for six months since he beat Marty Simmons of Saginaw, Mich. at Syracuse, Jones has been training more than a month for tonight's comeback effort.

Beauford Glover tangles with Tiger Jackson of Akron, one of the hardest punching welterweights in this part of the country in the six-round semi-final. This could easily develop into the big fight of the night.

* * *

Carbetta takes on Russ Brown of Akron in a five rounder. Like Carbetta, Brown had a successful career as an amateur, and he's won his first three professional starts. They go at 118 pounds.

* * *

Four-round bouts include a grudge battle between Harold Strine and Paul "Chief" Parker, Ashland heavies, a comeback effort by Kid Mondue, Marion veteran lightweight, against Jackie Young, tough Akron youngster, and a lightweight scramble between Jay Heilman, Ashland, and Jackie Martin, Akron.

Officials will be: John Eichinger, referee; Sam Fox, time-keeper; Jim Brownscombe, announcer; Gip Miller, George Allerding and Paul Eliot, judges. The first bout is booked for 8:15, and tickets are on sale today at the City News, and, of course, can be obtained tonight at the armory.

Prepare Track For Auto Race

Workmen To Be Busy All Through Night.

Workmen will be busy at the fairgrounds all night long preparing the dirt half-mile track for tomorrow's auto racing program in which 25 regular racing cars are expected to compete.

* * *

Even while tonight's ball game between the Mansfield Braves and Fostoria is going on, men will be loosening bolts in the ball park fence, and as soon as the game is over the fence will come tumbling down.

* * *

Sprinklers will be busy all through the night wetting down the track, and in the morning the track will be surfaced with a dust-laying compound.

"Racing fans need not worry about possibility of a dust-bowl race," E. M. Miller, director of the speed program declared today. "Drivers must have clear vision to pour those cars around the track at 100 miles in the straightaway, and 90 on the turns, and they insist that there be no dust."

* * *

There'll be plenty of thrills without the dust as the high-powered racers skid into the turns and shoot away again on that brief stretch of straightaway.

* * *

Qualifying trials will start at 11 a. m., and the first of the three elimination heats of five miles each is booked for 2:45 p. m. The program will wind up with the feature event of 15 miles for the nine surviving cars from the eliminations.

Zale Knocks Out Hostak

Floored In First, Champ Stages Comeback.

CHICAGO —(AP)— They grow them game in Gary.

Tony Zale, who once toiled in the mills of that Indiana steel city, proved that before 14,087 roaring fight fans at the stadium last night. Knocked spinning in the first round he came back with a furious attack to knock out Al Hostak of Seattle in two minutes, 32 seconds of the second stanza and retain his world's National Boxing association middleweight championship.

* * *

The scheduled 15-round battle, third between these punching stars of the 160-pound division, was hailed as a likely slugfest and was just that.

* * *

Swarming across the ring Hostak cracked the champion with a right to the chin that sent the Gary boy reeling. His gloves touched the canvas but he did not take a count. He piled back into the Seattle fighter from then on.

It was "Gary night" at the stadium. In a 10-round bout, Booker Beckwith, 21-year-old Negro from Zale's home town took an easy decision over Solly Krieger, Brooklyn, once middleweight champion.

Waners Get Back Together

LLOYD AND PAUL WANER

Baseball's most famous brother act, Paul and Lloyd Waner, is together again with the Boston Braves. First Lloyd was signed by the Braves and then Paul, who had started the season with the Brooklyn Dodgers, was taken aboard as a free agent. Lloyd is at the left here.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—Rumor foundry: the Brown front office is spiking stories Rick Ferrell will replace Fred Haney. . . . And we suppose reports that some of the Reds aren't speaking to each other are just part of the gossip that always goes along with a slump. . . . The Washington boxing commission says it paid Arthur Donovan $150 to referee Louis-Baer. Ray C Alvis, one of the promoters, says Donovan got a grand.

CRASHING THE ".400."

Ted Williams of the Red Sox pounded that apple for a neat .400 in his first 30 games. . . . Which led Mel Webb to sing as follows in the Boston Evening Globe:

This is the tale of Teddy the Great,
Who hits 'em early and hits 'em late,
Who's blazed away with his trusty bat
To the tune of a cool .400 flat.

TRAMP, TRAMP, TRAMP.

Hank Greenberg's outfit is marching 15 miles a day from Fort Custer, Mich., to Camp Forrest, Tenn. . . . Good crowds turn out at every stop. At one, signs were being carried around reading, "Here Comes the Army—and Greenberg." . . . Ben Chapman says the reason Washington aired him was his $12,000 salary. Clark Griffith merely says, "We are still on the market for a hard-hitting outfielder." . . . P. S.: Chapman closed at 255.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

C. E. McBride, Kansas City Star: "Baseball brings strange switches. . . . Dick Bartell, now on the Giants, finds himself teamed with Gabby Hartnett and Bill Jurges. . . . Bartell and Gabby didn't get along when Dick was with the Cubs. . . . And in the old days when Bartell was a Giant and Jurges a Cub, they used to tangle every time they came together in a play at second base."

THE MORNING LINE.

Ft. Worth bookies quote Craig Wood, Gene Sarazen, Jimmy Demaret and Ralph Guldahl at 15-1 in the National Open. Ben Hogan is 10-1 . . . Zeke Bonura, bowling along at a sweet .400 clip for Minneapolis, predicts he'll be first basing in the majors before the season is over and there are plenty who will second the motion. . . . The deal the Braves and Reds were trying to make didn't involve Max West, but called for Ernie Lombardi and Whitey Moore to change uniforms with Ray Berres and Lloyd Waner. Then Ernie began hitting and the thing fell through.

* * *

ONE-MINUTE INTERVIEW.

Joe Cronin: "If Joe and Dominic DiMaggio played in the same outfield there wouldn't be room enough for a third outfielder."

CRACK-OF-THE-WEEK.

WESLEYAN WINS

DELAWARE —(INS)— Ohio Wesleyan university's baseball nine ended its season today with a 9 to 8 victory over Wooster. Going into the ninth three runs behind the Bishops, with the aid of two hit batters, a base on balls and an error, scored four runs to pull the game out of the fire before a man was retired.

Three Rounds Of 36 Carded

Tipul, Mayer, Leichtle Shoot Even Par.

Three par rounds were carded by Westinghouse league golfers in the wind at Possum Run last evening, with Vin Tipul, Joe Mayer and Clarence Leichtle showing their more wayward playmates how perfect golf is played.

There was just one thing wrong with Mayer's round. He lost the match to Crum who shot a 38. Other 38 shooters were Deley, Boyle, and Hanawalt, while Spurgeon, Bogner, Kushin and Snyder had 39's.

Braves Battle for Third Place In Loop

Tied With Fostoria Red Birds Who Play at Fairground Tonight

Mansfield Braves have a fight on their hands for third place in the Ohio State league when they tangle with Fostoria tonight at the Fairground.

Fostoria went into a tie with the tribe last night with an 8 to 7 victory on the Red Bird lot, and now both clubs own a .500 percentage for the season.

It took a two-run rally in the ninth for the Birds to win last night's tilt, which had been nip-and-tuck from the second inning on.

* * *

The Braves took a 3-2 lead in the second, and kept one run ahead until the fifth when Fostoria tied the score at 6-6. Mansfield apparently had the game won with one run in the ninth, but back came the Birds with two counters, and with two men out.

* * *

Chuck Byers did the hurling for the Braves, and fanned eight batters. But he gave up 11 hits and two bases on balls, and hit one batter. Chuck had been complaining of a sore spot in his right elbow the night before.

Bob Feller Rushed to Rescue

Poor Pitching Costs Tribe Three Games.

DETROIT—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians, beaten three consecutive games by the Detroit Tigers because of poor pitching, nominated Bob Feller to snap the losing streak today. Bob has nine victories.

* * *

The recent defeats are a black eye for the experts, who stressed in pre-season predictions that the club was a cinch to win if the hitters came through. The Redskins now have four batters above .300, paced by Jeff Heath's .358, and Ken Keltner is within striking distance of the mark with .291.

* * *

Cleveland's 14 runs in the three games should have been enough for a couple of decisions, but the booming Bengal bats routed Al Smith, Al Milnar and Mel Harder on successive days to wipe out leads.

Yesterday the champion Tigers teed off on the offerings of Harder, Harry Eisenstat and Joe Heving for 11 hits, including a double and Bruce Campbell's third home run of the series, to win 8 to 5.

Detroit plated two runs in the seventh off Eisenstat to break a tie and Harry was charged with the setback.

Ray Mack had put the Indians back in the game in the first half of the seventh with a home run with two men on base. The blow finished starter Dizzy Trout, but the league-leaders were unable to solve the slants of Al Benton.

* * *

The Indians picked up nine hits, scoring their first two runs in the opening inning on Gerry Walker's double, two walks and two errors.

* * *

Jim Bagby and Smith are expected to pitch tomorrow's double-header in Chicago. The Indians return home Saturday to open a three-game series with New York.

The real sensation of the spring in the major leagues now is being provided by the Philadelphia Athletics, who have won nine of their last 11 games.

They squeezed into fifth place ahead of Boston yesterday by capturing a 6-4, 16-inning marathon from the Red Sox and now not only are threatening Detroit in fourth place, but are just three games out of second!

* * *

No one will dissent in giving the greatest credit to that 78-year-old genius of the scorecard, Cornelius McGillicuddy himself.

* * *

With no farm system worthy of the name and virtually without assistance Mr. Mack has sorted over literally hundreds of would-be ball players like a farmer would grade apples.

Now he has a young, vital team, full of potentialities but short on pitching. This latter difficulty has been alleviated through great relief work by Luman Harris and Tom Ferrick, who was picked out of the semi-pro ranks last winter.

Ferrick pitched the last 10 innings against the Red Sox yesterday, kept eight hits spaced and allowed only one run.

* * *

The New York Yankees gained a 6-5 verdict over Washington in the first night game ever played in the nation's capital. A crowd of 25,000 was present.

* * *

The St. Louis Cardinals clipped the Chicago Cubs 6-5 for their ninth consecutive victory.

A three-run homer by Vince DiMaggio gave the Pittsburgh Pirates the margin they needed to cage the Cincinnati Reds, 7-4.

Brooklyn's Dodgers preserved their hex over the Phillies by taking a 6-5 twelve-inning decision in a night game.

All-American Race Filled

French Drivers Fail To Qualify at Speedway.

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP)—An All-American field of 33 cars will face the starter tomorrow for the 29th running of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's 500-mile race.

* * *

Rene LeBegue and Jean Trevoux, who went to a lot of trouble to bring their Talbot Specials from unoccupied France, failed to get into the starting lineup.

* * *

The field was filled with qualifications for three places in the 11th row. "Deacon" Litz, Dubois, Pa., took the inside spot with a speed of 123.440 miles an hour. The other two positions went to Duke Nalon, Chicago, 122.237, and Al Putnam, Indianapolis, 121.951.

This year, as in 1940, two more than the limit of 33 starters passed the qualification test. Louis Durant, Hollywood, Calif., whose qualifying time of 116.152 was the next to the slowest, will start only if one of the other cars isn't at the line. A car must do 115 miles an hour or better for 10 miles to qualify.

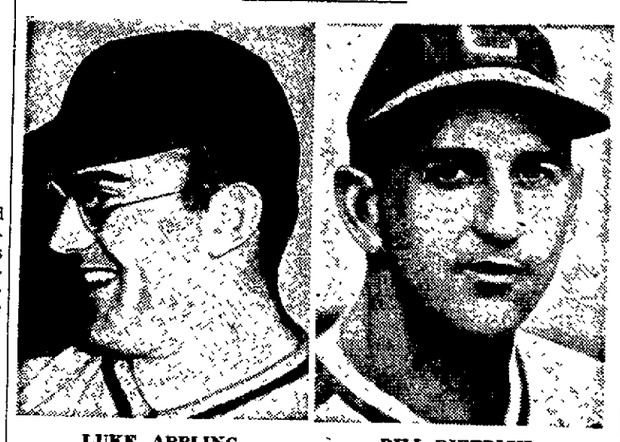
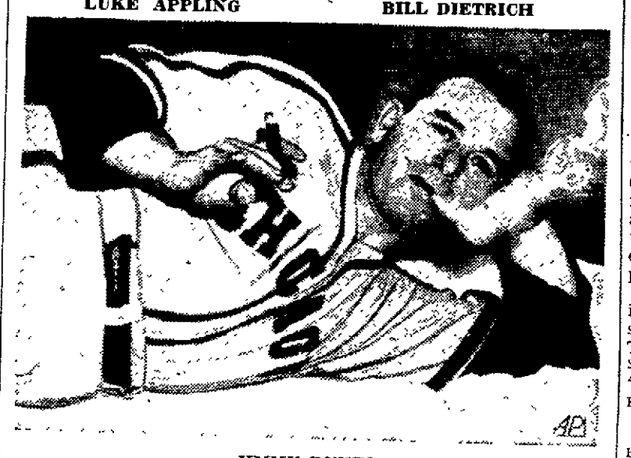
Dykes Picks Bargains to Put White Sox In Running



LUKE APPLING

BILL DIETRICH



JIMMY DYKES:
Just about baseball's canniest trader.

* * *

By DILLON GRAHAM
Sports Editor,
AP Feature Service.

NEW YORK—Jimmy Dykes, the squatty squire behind the stogie, has shown that you don't need a hunk of dough to build a baseball club if you've got a discerning eye for ivory.

At the end of the first five weeks of the American league season, Dykes had skippered his Chicago White Sox, a gang without a single high-priced performer into second place.

Besides being a clever manager, the best of the dugout jockeys, and a loquacious umpire dresser-down, Dykes is just about the canniest trader around the diamond marts.

He's foxier than the Old Fox, Clark Griffith. And he has outfoxed Griff several times.

Jimmy's eyes are weary from scanning the major league waiver lists for broken-down athletes who might be rejuvenated. He's acquired fallen arches from tramping from one baseball bargain counter to another in search for grey-beards or sore-arms who just possibly might have another good year in them. But he's built a contending club out of these outcasts, left-overs and discards.

Can't Understand It.

"Hell," he observes, "on paper we don't belong in the same league with Cleveland, but we ain't a fur piece behind 'em now.

"We're just playing winning ball. I can't explain why, if I look at the averages. Because we ain't hitting—we're last in the league, we're no fielding geniuses, and we ain't knocking in many runs. But we are getting good pitching.

"Don't know how long it'll keep up," he commented, taking a long, black cigar from his kisser and delicately knocking off the ashes.

"The White Sox ain't spent any real cabbage for a ball player since they bought me," he said. Then he laughed. He likes to explain that he and Mule Haas were tossed in as ballast when the Sox bought Al Simmons from the Athletics back in 1932 for $150,000.

"They didn't do so bad, at that," he said. "They got themselves a manager—me—and a coach—Mule—and they sold Simmons for $75,000."

The entire White Sox squad cost less than the Chicago Cubs paid for their latest coach, J. Herman Dean. Old Diz cost the Cubs $185,000 and several players when he was purchased several years ago as a pitcher.

Appling Expensive.

Luke Appling, shortstop and top hitter, was bought for approximately $25,000 in cash and players. But Dykes hurries to explain that that extravagant flourishing of greenbacks occurred in 1930, before he came to the Windy City. No one else cost near that much.

Dykes' latest acquisitions, Pitcher Lee Ross from the A's and Outfielder Myril Hoag from the Browns, came at the $7,500 waiver-price.

* * *

Taft Wright, the club's top hitting outfielder last year (.337), and Pete Appleton, relief pitcher, came from Washington in a swap for Gee Walker. Walker hadn't cost a great deal, either, for he and Mike Tresh, a youngster who developed into a good catcher, reached the Sox in a 6-player deal with the Tigers.

Thornton Lee, the No. 2 hurler, was obtained in a barter for John Salveson, a hurler who didn't last long in the majors. Second Baseman Bill Knickerbocker came from the Yankees in a swap for a substitute catcher, Ken Silvestri. Julius Solters was obtained from the Browns for Rip Radcliff, who hadn't cost much. Dario Lodigiani, third baseman, came from the A's for hurler Jack Knott.

Fancy Dealing.

Pitchers Bill Dietrich and Edgar Smith came on waivers. Joe Kuhel, first baseman, was obtained from Washington for Zeke Bonura, who had cost around $15,000 and is no longer in the majors. Outfielder Lawrence Rosenthal cost $15,000 and Mike Kreevich, another flychaser, $7,500.

* * *

Infielder Don Kolloway, Pitcher John Rigney, Infielder Bob Kennedy and Pitcher Ted Lyons were caught young and cost the Sox practically nothing. Lyons came straight from the Baylor university campus back in 1923.

* * *

The entire first string Sox team, including Pitcher Ted Lyons, cost less than the Tigers paid for rookie Pitcher Fred Hutchinson.

"And," as Dykes observes in passing, "the Sox are in second place and Hutch still is in the minors."

Columbus Team Meets Providents

The R. Wilkie Meats who play the state champion Mansfield Provident girls' softball club at Johns Park tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock, are members of the girls' night softball league of Columbus, and also are playing each Wednesday night under the lights of Lincoln Field in Delaware.

Mrs. Oral Teatsorth, manager of the Columbus team, has announced the following lineup for tomorrow's game: Virginia James, pitcher, Kathleen Cutler, 3b, Mary Jane Carson, 2b, Red Wagner, ss, Isabell Orr, 1b, Jane Chapman, sf, Hazel Franklin, c, Pauline Hawkins, cf, Marjorie Stone, lf, Beatrice Cleveland or Barbara Prentice, rf.

Mays had last year. Wilbur Shaw, Indianapolis, winner last year and in two other years, was pushed from second to third place, where Rose started in 1940.

The first row starting order was just the reverse of the way the three finished last year—Shaw, Mays and Rose. Rose got the pole position with a qualifying speed of 128.691 miles an hour. Mays' time was 128.301 and Shaw's 127.836.

Scores Pile Up In Loop

Commercial League Hitters Clout Apple.

N. & W. Coal Service defeated Isalys 8 to 5, Town Tavern took Humphryes 12 to 10, and Mansfield Tires trounced Tappans 14 to 3 while the Athletic Supplys won a 16 to 14 decision over the Safety Cabs in softball tilts of the Y. M. C. A. Commercial league yesterday.

* * *

The Coalmen collected seven runs by the end of the fifth inning and didn't let Isalys score till the sixth when they came in with three runs and scored two more in the seventh. One run in the seventh by the Coalmen put them in an 8 to 5 lead.

* * *

In the Town Tavern-Humphryes tilt, Town Tavern had only a 7 to 6 lead in the sixth inning but rallied with four runs in the eighth and held Humphryes to one to put them in an 11 to 7 lead. In an exciting ninth inning Humphreys piled on three runs but fell short.

Taking a 5 to 0 lead in the first inning, Mansfield Tires had no strugg: to collect 9 more from Tappans to take the game 14 to 3.

Indians Purchase Larry Rosenthal

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Cleveland's Indians today bought Outfielder Larry Rosenthal from the Chicago White Sox and sent Outfielder Murray Howell back to Baltimore of the International league.

Both transactions were on a straight cash basis, the club announced. Rosenthal, a left-handed hitter, batted .301 for the White Sox last year but so far this season he is around .225.

Howell, right-handed hitter who was the International league batting champion in 1940 with .362 started suspiciously at the season's beginning to fill the Indians' crying need for a good pinch-hitter, but has bogged down to .286 for seven at-bats.

Sanquoit, New York and Henry Paul Princehorn, Leroy, New York, will take notice that on May 29th there was filed in the Common Pleas Court of Richland County, Ohio, an application in the special proceedings H. G. SOURS, DIRECTOR OF HIGHWAYS OF THE STATE OF OHIO, ON RELATION OF THOMAS J. HERBERT, ATTORNEY GENERAL, PLAINTIFF, vs. FRANCIS L. BROWN, ET AL., DEFENDANTS CASE NO. 25854, setting forth that on April 10, 1941 the Director of Highways, proceeding under Section 1229-1 General Code and his related sections, made an order in which he determined and declared it to be his intention to proceed in the matter of the elimination of the grade crossing over the tracks of The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company on State Highway No. 501 located at a point in Richland County, at the west edge of Mansfield, Ohio.

Plaintiff further says that thereafter, pursuant to said entry and order and the statutes above referred to, the Director proceeded with the elimination of the grade crossing aforesaid; that he caused plans and specifications to be prepared and filed as required by law; that a copy of said entry was published as required by law; and notice was duly served as required by law upon the owners of all the property to be taken and owners of land abutting on any portions of the improvement or otherwise affected in the construction of the improvement; that following said notice, numerous claims for compensation and damages were filed, including that of the defendants above named with whom the Director of Highways was unable to agree; that on the 21st day of May, 1941, the said Director of Highways made an order which was duly entered on his journal in Volume 26 Page 192, in which he determined that the claim of the defendants above named should be inquired into after the completion of the improvement; that the Director of Highways transmitted certified copies of said entry as required by law and requested the Attorney General to apply to the probate or common pleas court of Richland County, Ohio, wherein said real estate is situated, for the determination of the compensation and damages, or either, of said claimants and the application is made pursuant to said request; and that a certified copy of the said entry of the Director of Highways is attached to the application, marked "Exhibit A" and made a part thereof.

Wherefore, the applicant prays that upon receipt of proper notice to the effect that the project above referred to has been completed the court assign this cause as to the defendants above named for trial and impanel a jury to determine the compensation and damages, if any, due said owner within a reasonable time as required by law.

ODD DEATH

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah—(UP)—When Lieut. Albert W. James, flying over the snow-clad Wasatch mountains, ran out of gasoline, he parachuted to safety. He was alone in his training plane at the time.

Yet the crash caused one fatality. Clifton W. Heiner, 21, of Morgan, Utah, died of over-exertion after climbing to the high peak where the plane smashed.

There are about 1,540 railway tunnels in the United States.

GAINS EVENLY DISTRIBUTED ON MART TODAY

Stocks Keep Feet on Ground With Dealings Inclined To Be Stagnant.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The stock market today achieved a fair amount of success in keeping its feet on the ground.

While dealings were relatively stagnant from the start, small fractional gains were well distributed near the second hour.

Wall Street seemingly still was undecided as to just what effect the president's "unlimited emergency" would ultimately have on securities markets and the disposition of the few customers who showed up in boardrooms today was to keep accounts liquid.

Among items scanned in the search for market trend indicators were:

A compliation by the National Industrial Conference board disclosing net profits of all U. S. manufacturing corporations for 1940 aggregated about $2,600,000,000, as compared with $3,100,000,000 in the brisk recovery year of 1937.

SHIELD EXPERT HERE

H. M. SHEVNAN, widely known expert of Chicago, will personally be at the Southern Hotel, Mansfield, Saturday, only, May 31, from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Mr. Shevnan says: The Zoetic Shield is a tremendous improvement over all former methods, effecting immediate results. It will not only hold the rupture perfectly but increase the circulation, strengthens the weakened parts, thereby closes the opening in ten days on the average case, regardless of heavy lifting, straining or any position the body may assume no matter the size or location. A nationally known scientific method. No under straps or cumbersome arrangements and absolutely no medicines or medical treatments.

Mr. Shevnan will be glad to demonstrate without charge

Add. 6509 N. Artesian Ave., Chicago.

'Praises Bee Bee's For Marvelous Relief From Kidney, Prostate Trouble'

Camden man declares he suffered much agony for 4 years with pains in hips, legs and back. Now feels 100% better after taking Bee Bee's.

Mr. J. C. Fulton, 64 years of age, 175 South Main Street, Camden, Ohio, declares:

"I am a traveling salesman and I have to drive a lot in all kinds of weather. This driving has bothered my kidneys for the past four years. My condition was worse in cold weather.

"I was dizzy all the time and my loss of vitality and sleep made me so cross and disagreeable. My nights were broken up by getting up so many times. Some nights I would have to arise 8 times. Now that I have taken Bee Bee's I have to arise only once at night, and sometimes not at all. Two years ago I had to have my urine drawn by a doctor. I had terrible pains in my back and over my right hip and over my right kidney. It was hard for me to straighten up on account of the pains. My right leg would become numb and cold and I would have to swing it to get the circulation started. The neck of my bladder would burn and sometimes I couldn't urinate for five or ten minutes. Now since I have taken Bee Bee's I feel fine and sleep well. I have many friends in Piqua, and Middletown, Ohio, and nearby places and I will recommend Bee Bee's to them and every one who suffers as I have."
